Lupescu's Power Growing As Goga Foes Consolidate

Peasant Party Chief and Carol Patch Quarrel Over King's Friend.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Consolidation of opposition against Premier Octavian Goga was reported to have gone a step further today after former Premier Alexander Vaida-Voevod had a two-hour audience with King Carol.

It was stated authoritatively that Vaida-Voevod—ousted from the National Peasant party because the party leader, Juliu Maniu, would not tolerate his anti-Semitic policies—told the King he was ready to make peace with Maniu and re-enter the party.

Quiet Lupescu Quarrel.

This development came after Maniu, also a former premier, was reported to have made possible the first move toward patching up his quarrel with King Carol over the monarch's friendship for Mme. Magda Lupescu.

Friends of Vaida-Voevod said he prized democracy more than his conviction that Rumania must steer an anti-Semitic course. Vaida-Voevod and Maniu were expected to meet Sunday to discuss the situation.

Maniu, who resigned in 1933 because of his argument with Carol, conferred with General Ernst Baliff, who is close to the King. He was given to understand that Carol was ready to be friends on condition there be no interference in his private affairs.

Strengthen Lupescu.

The prospective reconciliation was viewed as the possible development of an effective opposition to Goga, leader of the National Christian party.

A reconciliation between Carol and Maniu, upon an understanding that the King's friendship for the red-haired Jewess be undisturbed, would strengthen her position as a behind-the-throne adviser.

LYNCH BILL FOES DENOUNCE ICKES

Secretary Termed 'Renegade'; '60 Families' Book Is Hurled on the Floor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Some southern senators fighting the anti-lynching bill turned their attack upon Secretary Ickes today and repeatedly hurled to the senate floor a book he had used in his recent speeches against concentrated wealth.

Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, called the secretary a "renegade Republican" and described as "garbage" the book the secretary had mentioned—Ferdinand Lundberg's "America's Sixty Families."

Throws Book on Floor.

With a gesture of anger and disgust, Bailey threw a copy of the volume into a nearby aisle.

While other senators turned quickly to see what had happened, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, picked up the book and started to lay it on his desk. Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, grabbed it, and hurled it to the floor again.

The debate continued after Thomas had retrieved the book again and placed it under a nearby desk.

Bailey asserted the secretary of the interior had appropriated "muck-raking" ideas contained in Lundberg's book.

Ellender Speaks.

Senator Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, followed Bailey, asserting that northerners did not understand problems in the south and should not attempt to force passage of the anti-lynching bill.

The Louisiana senator asserted there had been "tons and tons of propaganda" issued in favor of the anti-lynching bill.

"They label it an 'anti-lynching bill,'" he said, "but it is as far removed from anti-lynching as I am from the North Pole."

Ellender compared crime sta-

TrolleyBandit Escapes Trap In Gunfire

Lone Robber Hit Twice But Loses Pursuers, Including 3 Volunteers.

A lone armed negro last night held up an Irwin street trolley and escaped in a hail of bullets from a trap set by detectives and power company officials. He was believed to have been wounded twice after trying to force the operator, C. L. Fuller, to crash an automobile which two power company men drove across the tracks to block the streetcar to a halt.

He escaped with $21.

The holdup man, described as long, lanky and of gingercake hue, boarded the streetcar at the end of the line at Irwin street and Elizabeth street, about 9 o'clock after helping his victim change the trolley. Sitting nearby in an automobile were District Superintendent M. F. Jones and Supervisor F. D. Smith of the power company.

Detectives Wait.

At the second stop from the end of the line were Detectives E. S. Acree, R. T. Denny and "Doc" Sims. They were parked between two houses, commanding a view of the stop, which has been the scene of several streetcar holdups.

The thief paid his fare, went to the back of the streetcar and sat down. After the car started he got up and asked Fuller for change of a dime. The car passed the detectives while Fuller was giving him the change. The officers saw nothing suspicious and remained in their hideout.

Jones and Smith were riding alongside in their automobile.

As soon as he had been given the change the negro threatened the operator of the car with a gun and took all his cash. The power company men in the trail car saw that Fuller was being robbed and pulled ahead, parking across the tracks at the third stop from

SENATE PROPOSES HOUSE VOTE TAX TO HELP ASYLUM

Resolution Stresses Need To Correct 'Deplorable Conditions' at State's Milledgeville Buildings.

TWO DEATHS LAID TO OVERCROWDING

Resolution Seeks To Bar Reporter for Stories on Fight Over Liquor Bill.

The state senate yesterday called upon the house of representatives to pass a tax bill which would provide funds for needed new buildings at the state hospital at Milledgeville. Speaker Roy V. Harris, reiterating his support of the Thomas liquor tax bill, said its passage would release funds, now being used by the schools, to aid the building program.

The senate's action was on a resolution by Senator Mack Johnson, of Cartersville. No specific bill was named in the resolution. A new chain store tax bill, with the revenues allocated to the board of public welfare for new buildings, is pending in the house.

Senator Johnson presented his resolution after the upper branch of the assembly had received a copy of a letter from Welfare Chairman Arthur Lucas to Governor Rivers, disclosing that two recent deaths at the Milledgeville hospital were directly attributed to crowded conditions at the hospital.

Deplorable Conditions.

Action on the resolution was unanimous. It called attention to "the deplorable state of affairs existing at the state hospital" and pointed out that Governor Rivers had brought the matter to the attention of the senate.

Three measures designed to produce additional revenue for the state and the various counties were started through the legislative machinery of the general assembly during the day.

Two were tax bills, one allowing counties to levy a tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline and the other imposing a tax of $2 a contract on future sales or purchases of all kinds of commodities.

State Salaries Threatened.

The third measure proposed that 20 per cent be cut off of the amount above $200 a month paid in salary to any state official or employe.

CHIANG FIGHTING TO SAVE RAIL LINE

Nipponese Columns Close on Suchow as Mongols Join To Repel Tokyo.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15 (Saturday) (AP)—Japanese announced today their forces in Shantung province had driven through strategic Tsining southward toward the Lunghai railway and had occupied Tangchiakuo. The Chinese 29th army which had defended Tsining was retreating, they said, toward Kinshan, 27 miles to the south.

Chinese press dispatches conceded the Japanese were in possession of Tsining which was reported deserted by civilians and virtually destroyed by gunfire.

Earlier, a reinforced Chinese army, fighting savagely to stave off the Japanese conquest of the nation's bread basket, was reported today to have recaptured Tsining by storm.

Chinese dispatches said the Japanese captors of the southern Shantung province city were taken by surprise by a furious counter-attack over the frozen surface of the historic Grand canal and were driven three miles from the city.

The battle is in the great agricultural region of Central China.

Independent reports indicated Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, in personal command on the Lunghai front, was concentrating his utmost strength along the Lunghai railroad. The great east-west trunk through the heart of central China long has been considered China's last line of defense.

Japanese Closing on Suchow.

Two Japanese columns were closing on strategic Suchow like relentless pincers from the north and south. Suchow is the junction of the Lunghai and the north-south Tientsin-Pukow railroad, which is the Japanese line of advance.

The Chinese have been recruiting new troops in the central provinces at a rapid pace and 750,000 in the past six weeks were reported to have enrolled. These men, with very little training, are being put into action against the 100,000 trained Japanese troops in southern Shantung and northern Kiangsu provinces.

The northern and southern Japanese columns were 180 miles

LEADERS OF LABOR AND CAPITAL TALK

Representatives Confer an Hour and Half With Roosevelt on Recession.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Leaders of government, industry, finance and labor joined hands today in a common search for some means of bringing the current business slump to an abrupt and mutually welcome end.

Shortly after noon, the comfortable oval office of President Roosevelt was the scene of an unusual spectacle. Gathered there were the chief executive, Thomas W. Lamont, senior Morgan partner; Owen D. Young, of General Electric; Charles W. Taussig, of American Molasses; A. A. Berle, a former administration advisor, and John L. Lewis and Philip Murray, of the CIO.

For an hour and a quarter they talked of the business situation, and of ways to improve it. When the President's visitors emerged from the White House, it was Labor Leader Lewis, who was their spokesman.

"We attended this conference with the President," he said—while the industrialists stood about nodding agreement—"and discussed with him the gravity of the existing economic and industrial situation in the country.

"This group had had some preliminary discussions and were impressed with the desirability, if at all possible, of working out with the President and the administration some definite program of action by government, business and labor.

"The discussions will be continued at the President's discretion."

Among the questions asked, an important one, was whether the group presented a specific proposal to the President.

Cardozo Physicians See 'Hopeful Sign'

FINANCIAL EXPERT SEEKS TO RESTORE COALITION REGIME

Premier's Post Rejected by Chautemps, Who Quit, and Daladier Before Diplomat Agrees To Aid.

BRITAIN AND U. S. WATCH SITUATION

French Statesman Will See Former Premiers in Vital Interviews Today.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Georges Bonnet, diplomat and financial expert, tonight tried to pull together the shattered remnants of the people's front and form a new government to solve the labor and economic problems that forced Camille Chautemps out of office.

Bonnet, finance minister in Chautemps' cabinet and, like him, a Radical-Socialist, promised to give President Albert Lebrun his answer tomorrow.

Bonnet said tonight he would begin interviews tomorrow in his effort to set up a cabinet to succeed the Chautemps government which resigned early today.

The men he mentioned he would see all are former premiers—Leon Blum, Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies; Edouard Daladier, minister of national defense in the Chautemps cabinet; Senator Joseph Caillaux, Albert Sarrout, and Joseph Paul-Boncour.

Bonnet added: "I have an appointment at 12:30 p. m. (6:30 a. m. Atlanta time) tomorrow with the president of the republic."

He declined to answer questions on whether he was maintaining a stand against exchange control. He said they were "inopportune."

At least two other persons refused the post before Bonnet accepted the task of whipping the Communists, Socialists and Radical-Socialists once again into the people's front that ruled France for 19 months.

Strikes Still Spreading.

The still spreading wave of strikes and the threat to France's prestige among her already wavering allies in central Europe hastened Lebrun's efforts to obtain a new government.

In the "red region" of northern France, 10,000 workers demonstrated their "vigilance" and support of the Communists outside Valenciennes metal factories. The Communist support of strikers and insistence on foreign exchange control was the immediate cause of Chautemps' downfall.

Mobile guardsmen, whose weapons on riot duty are carbines, unobtrusively patrolled the streets of Paris.

Diplomats of the United States and Great Britain—linked with France in the monetary accord that sought to bolster the falling franc—watched the situation closely.

TAX REPORT HELPS SMALL COMPANIES

Subcommittee of House Suggests 63 Changes in Undivided Profits Levies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP) The house ways and means tax subcommittee today formally recommended 63 changes in the revenue laws which would exempt small corporations, constituting 90 per cent of American business, under the undivided profits levy and grant large enterprises only part of the relief demanded from harsh rates.

HOUSE UNIT FIGHTS 'ITEM VETO' POWER

Appropriations Group To Ask Senate To Nullify Authority to President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Angry members of the house appropriations committee joined today in an almost unprecedented "post mortem" rebellion against legislation giving to President Roosevelt the power to veto individual items in an appropriation bill.

Members said the committee decided to try to get the senate to nullify the "item veto" power approved by the house earlier this week.

Provision for the Presidential vetoes was added to the independent offices appropriation bill late last Tuesday when few house members were on the floor. Much criticism since has been directed at the amendment and its author, Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, the chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill.

The appropriations committee decided to have Chairman Taylor, Democrat, Colorado, confer with the senate appropriations committee, which now has the bill.

Foes of the proposal said that, if the senate did not kill it, separate legislation repealing the Presidential power would be offered after the bill is passed.

Representative Maverick, Democrat, Texas, warned the house that enactment of the "item veto" would make certain a drastic cut in federal highway appropriations which, although recommended by the President, has encountered strong opposition in congress.

Woodrum contended approval of the proposal was "one of the most constructive steps we've taken" to control the government's budgetary system.

De Ovies Sees Noe Fast Useless; Suggests Dean Dine as Jesus Did

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe made it clear today he does not care what others say respecting the fast he believes is carrying him slowly, but surely toward immortality on earth.

He read an interview in which Dean Raimundo de Ovies of St. Philip's Episcopal Cathedral, Atlanta, questioned the value of his demonstration, and declared:

"If Dean de Ovies understood my philosophy he would be qualified to comment. Not understanding it, I harly see how he is in a position to comment.

"I do not care to make any further statement except to say I wanted no publicity at any time and that I wish the newspapers would drop the whole affair."

Dean de Ovies, a friend of 30 years, had no doubt of the Memphian's sincerity, but said the experiment could be of value only to the faster.

"If Dean Noe continues his fast," the Atlantan said, "and lives, he will have proved an unusual and extraordinary thing for only Dean Noe. But even so, the rest of the world will go on with three meals a day, if possible, and if not that, with such things to eat as their means can provide."

Dean de Ovies pleaded that men "continued sane even in religious matters."

He said Jesus "was a great diner-out, attending feasts, banquets, dinners and all else where food and drink were served in abundance."

"A more interesting experiment would be to do as Jesus did—that

'Tobacco Road' Play Author Biffs Critic in Brawl at Writers' Cafe

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(UP)—The battle of "Tortilla Flat," as fought last night in Jack Bleeck's Artists and Writers' restaurant, was reviewed tonight by earnest critics gathered before Bleeck's bar as the powerful restaurant keeper paced the area to keep the peace.

He saw to it that there was no aftermath to the counter-criticism of Playwright Jack Kirkland, who resented with a right hook Critic Richard Watts Jr.'s review of his play, "Tortilla Flat," as adapted from the novel of John Steinbeck.

This form of resentment developed other resentment, equally vigorous. As Watts fell against the bar, Bleeck stepped in and punched Kirkland heartily and won many encores.

The bout ended when Watts led a flying wedge of friends through the crowd and stopped it in less than two minutes of the first round.

"It wasn't for me," Kirkland said, as he and Watts talked it over. "It was for the cast." He said the cast had been discouraged by reviews the play had received.

"I've been working nine months on the play and I've been crazy all day after reading those reviews."

"I can't help it if you've worked 10 years," Watts answered, in his usual mild manner, "I still think it's a lousy play."

"I'm through with the theater," Kirkland announced and walked out.

But he can't quite be through with the theater, because his other adaptation, "Tobacco Road," is in its fifth year in New York.

HORNSBY SUSPENDS TWO ON ACCUSATION OF ACCEPTING FEES

Patrolman A. Douglas Poole Charged With Mistreating Crash Victim.

Two policemen were suspended by Chief Hornsby yesterday on charges of accepting "fees," while a complaint was filed against a third accusing him of "conduct unbecoming an officer."

J. L. (Eddie) Hughes and T. B. Clark were the patrolmen who were suspended. Charges growing out of the alleged mistreatment of a man injured in an automobile accident were filed against Patrolman A. Douglas Poole.

No action was taken on the two suspensions by the police committee of city council which met last night. Civil service rules require that charges be served at least five days prior to trial. The cases will be taken up at the next regular meeting of the committee, Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman, said.

Hughes was charged with accepting fees from negro undertakers for information concerning bodies at Grady hospital. Clark was accused of accepting $1 tips from professional bondsmen. Chief Hornsby previously had announced Clark would be suspended, but the investigation of Hughes' case was not completed until yesterday.

$25 Fees Reported.

Chief Hornsby said he had learned at least two negro undertakers had paid Hughes fees of $5 and $25. The undertakers admitted they had made such payments, the chief said. Hughes has been detailed as a hospital patrolman at Grady.

Clark is accused of accepting fees from bondsmen in cases where "tips" he gave resulted in the bondsmen making fees, Chief Hornsby charged. Clark denied the charges.

The complaint against Poole accused him with jeopardizing the life of a badly injured auto accident victim by pulling him from an ambulance and refusing to permit him to be taken to a hospital in the ambulance.

"False Arrest."

The lengthy complaint charged him with "false arrest," "conduct unbecoming an officer," for "unnecessary jeopardizing" the life of E. W. Estes, and for ejecting an injured man "by force" from an ambulance.

Accusations grew out of an automobile accident on Beecher street January 1. Bennie Quick, of Belmont avenue, and E. W. Estes Jr., of 1217 Lorenzo drive, were critically injured.

Poole, it is alleged, pulled Estes from the ambulance which had been summoned to take him and the other victims to Grady hospital and then forced the youth into the police car. Estes suffered a fractured vertebrae in the accident.

In explaining the case, Poole said "the ambulance came to the scene without a physician and Mr. Quick appeared to me to be bleeding to death, and I knew the ambulance would be compelled to rush him to the hospital.

"Helped Him Out."

"The ambulance driver had placed Mr. Estes on the front seat of the ambulance, and in view of the fact that Mr. Estes was complaining of back injuries, I feared it would be injurious for him to be jolted about in a fast ride to the hospital. Therefore, I helped him out of the ambulance, placed him on the back seat of my car as comfortably as possible, and then I drove him slowly to the hospital.

"Every patrolman is supposed to have a first-hand knowledge of first-aid, and I thought I was only doing my duty when I removed Estes from the front seat of the ambulance and to my car."

The accusations against Clark and Hughes came as the result of an extensive investigation into reputed "bribery" in the police department by Chief Hornsby and Alderman Bridges, chairman of the police committee.

POLICE COMMITTEE INVITES LIEUT. KREML

A step toward the improvement of Atlanta's traffic situation was taken last night as the police committee of city council voted to invite Lieutenant F. M Kreml, safety director, from Evanston, Ill., here for an address February 3.

Members of city council, traffic clubs and all organizations which helped in the betterment of traffic conditions last year, will be invited to attend the meeting.

Lieutenant Kreml, who is director of the safety division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, will outline his idea of a traffic plan.

Six new men were added to the police staff as supernumeraries last night. The new men are O. L. Kilpatrick, Joel B. White, C. R. Fleming, G. S. Robertson, James C. Barnes and Norris T. Miller.

Although the finance sheet provides for 25 additions to the clerical force of the department, Chief Hornsby asked the committee to let him fill all of these places with supernumeraries. Approximately 2,000 applications have been submitted for the 25 positions, but Chief Hornsby said no jobs are available for outsiders.

POLICEMAN'S HEIRS WIN BENEFIT SUIT

Three Hewell Children Get $1,390 Award Against Relief Association.

Three children of the late O. C. Hewell, city policeman, yesterday won an award of $1,000 principal and $390 interest in their suit against the Atlanta Police Relief Association on their father's death benefit certificate.

The case, tried before a jury in Fulton superior court, with Judge Hugh M. Dorsey presiding, had once been to the state supreme court, where a previous superior court decision dismissing the suit on demurrer was overruled.

Hewell killed himself and his wife on June 14, 1932. He had been a member of the relief association since 1915, with his wife named as beneficiary in his certificate.

Defense Attorney George Fielding claimed for his clients, Miss Dorothy Hewell and her two minor brothers, George and Lamar Hewell, that they were sole survivors and were entitled to payment on the policy.

City Attorney Jack Savage based the association's stand on contentions that the plaintiffs were not the named beneficiaries, that the premium on the policy was due June 1 and had not been paid before the policeman's death, and that by-laws of the association provided full payment of premiums must be made within 10 days after falling due or the policy would be void.

STATE INCOME TAX ENTERS GREEN TILT

Colonel's Secretary Testifies on Payment.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Wilbur K. Potter, secretary to the late Colonel Edward H. R. Green, testified at a federal court hearing today that Green never paid a personal income tax in any of the four states contesting for the right to tax his estate.

Testimony revealed claims for back income taxes as well as inheritance taxes may reduce the $40,000,000 fortune left by the eccentric millionaire.

The inheritance taxes alone claimed by the four states were: New York, $6,016,026; Texas and Massachusetts, $5,248,773 each, and Florida, $4,496,651. Only one will collect.

The federal estate tax has been computed at $17,520,987.93, of which $17,000,000 already has been paid, Pottter explained, in order to avoid interest payments on unpaid taxes.

'KETTIG DAY' HELD BY FEDERAL BANK

Retired Board Chairman and Reserve System Agent Honored at Meeting Here.

Honoring William H. Kettig, recently retired chairman of the board of directors and Federal Reserve agent, yesterday was designated as "Kettig Day" at the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank.

A native of New Orleans, where he later was connected with the Seaboard Refining Company, Mr. Kettig was appointed a Class "C" director September 10, 1914, at the inception of the Federal Reserve system. Since that date, by means of successive appointments, he maintained an unbroken record of constructive service until his resignation December 31, 1937.

He was appointed deputy chairman of the board, January 1, 1922, and May 22, 1937 he was chosen to fill the position of chairman of the board of directors, and Federal Reserve agent.

A special meeting yesterday of the board of directors was presidappointed chairman. Ernest T. George, director of the bank, presented Mr. Kettig with an inscribed gold watch on behalf of his associates. A resolution, drawn by a committee of directors and officers of the bank, praising and summarizing Mr. Kettig's valuable services was read to the board. The resolution in part said:

"Mr. Kettig's long tenure in office has extended over the entire life span of the Federal Reserve system. As a director of this bank he saw the system enter upon its career of usefulness amid the chaotic conditions brought about by the beginning of the World War.

"Upon his withdrawal from active official service Mr. Kettig may not only experience the satisfaction that comes with the consciousness of duty well done, h may also with due modesty, and in the light of the facts as they are written, feel that he has been one of the leaders to whom credit should be given for the record of achievement.

"All those who have come in contact with him have loved him. Always cheerful, kindly, considerate and gentle, he has been counted as a cherished friend by his fellow directors, the officers of the bank, and its employes."

The bankers honored Mr. Kettig with a luncheon.

MUTUAL LIFE WINS IN DEATH VERDICT

Court Upholds Double Floridan Really Died.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Federal Judge Akerman directed a verdict for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York late today in a suit by Mrs. Nellie F. Zimerman and her daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Marie Adle, for insurance on the life of Albert F. Zimmerman, Clearwater businessman who disappeared in August, 1927.

The verdict, which attorneys said would be appealed, abruptly ended the third trial of the suit after 36 witnesses gave testimony attempting to show Zimmerman lost his life while wading in the Indian river. Twenty-one witnesses were presented by the insurance company which inferred Zimmerman disappeared because of domestic difficulties and heavy debts of his business enterprises.

In the first trial a jury was unable to reach a verdict and in the second case a jury awarded Mrs. Zimmerman and Mrs. Adle $50,000. This latter verdict was reversed.

'Recent Drink Habit' Blamed in Girl's Thefts

A "recently acquired drinking habit" was blamed in Fulton superior court yesterday for the theft several weeks ago of two coats from a downtown hotel.

Miss Elsie King, 24-year-old drug clerk of Corpus Christi, Texas, pleaded guilty before Judge Virlyn B. Moore and told the court she would not have taken the articles if she had not been intoxicated.

City detectives testified they arrested Miss King in the bus terminal with the articles in her luggage. She had just purchased a ticket to Montgomery, Ala., they stated.

Judge Moore sentenced her to six months at the state farm.

GOVERNMENT HELD AIDING IN RECESSION

Aldrich, Banker, and Morrow, Industrialist, Testify at Senate Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A banker and an industrial leader told the senate unemployment committee today that government could not escape a share of the blame for the business recession.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, of New York, told the committee that government's most serious mistake was in offering direct competition to the utilities, thus destroying confidence of investors in the utilities' securities and cutting their purchases from the durable goods industries.

J. D. A. Morrow, of Pittsburgh, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, asserted bluntly that "this depression was made in Washington." He declared it could be cured "by frank acknowledgment that some mistakes had been made," and by rectification of the mistakes.

Utilities 'Bursting to Go.'

If the threat of competition by the government is removed, the utilities are "simply bursting to go ahead," Aldrich said. Their activities would provide a needed impetus to all business because of attendant capital goods expenditures, he observed.

"Inflammatory statements" against business by "members of the government" had been one of the most unfortunate aspects of the recession, Aldrich declared. He agreed with Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, that if there is a "constant flow of propaganda to discredit the administration," as Murray asserted, it ought to be stopped.

The banker declared that, in his opinion, some administration supporters had failed to distinguish between businessmen guilty of "improper practices" and "the great mass of businessmen" who desired to correct abuses.

Favors Federal Work Relief.

The Rt. Rev. John A. O'Grady, of the National Catholic Welfare Council, told the committee federal work relief was preferable to state-administered direct relief or large-scale public works programs like PWA.

"The Works Progress Administration has greater flexibility than the traditional public works," Father O'Grady asserted. "It also has greater priming value."

WOMEN FROM ASIA OUTSHINE RUSSIANS

Red Parliament at Moscow Includes 187 Females as Members.

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Vividly-shawled women of Asia, the Far North and Near East today stole the show from their more sedately dressed Russian sister members of the Red parliament.

There were 110 women in the Soviet of Nationalities and 77 in the Soviet of the Union—the two branches of parliament—with the native costumes of the former outshining the latter, who were predominately Russian.

Joseph Stalin looked on from an official box at the proceedings of the Soviet of Nationalities as both houses cleared the way for the election of a presidium to act between sessions of parliament.

This they accomplished by approving the credentials of its members. Since the deputies were all elected without opposition, contests were lacking.

Communists in the Soviet of the Union totaled 461, or 81 per cent, and 409 in the Soviet of Nationalities, or 71 per cent. Non-party members made up the balance.

COERCION ON PRICES CHARGED TVA HEAD

Cement Executive's Telegram to Morgan Received in Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission received in evidence today a telegram accusing Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, of attempting to coerce the cement industry regarding price policies during 1934.

The telegram was sent to Morgan on September 6, 1934, by the late John Treanor, who was president of the Riverside Cement Company, Los Angeles. Treanor had introduced Morgan to cement producers in order to help him study cement prices in connection with large proposed TVA purchases.

The authority's "peremptory decision to pay no more than $1.16 a barrel for cement" was "a bald assertion of the immense power which is yours through your control of vast government funds," Treanor wired.

This was made part of the commission's record in connection with Morgan's testimony concerning large TVA cement purchases. The commission is conducting hearings on its charge that the Cement Institute and 75 companies attempted to fix prices by collusive bidding.

In a letter to Morgan two months after the telegram was sent, Treanor said he thought Morgan had made "a substantially fair adjustment in view of all the facts."

TESTIMONY CONCLUDED IN SECOND TVA SUIT

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(UP)—Presentation of testimony and documentary evidence was finished late today before a three-judge federal court which opened hearings last November 15 on the second major suit challenging constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The case will go to the special district court, Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Florence E. Allen presiding, tomorrow afternoon after counsel for TVA and 18 complainant power companies have had three hours each for concluding arguments.

Judge Allen said the court hopes to hand down a decision within a week.

METHODISTS CLOSE SAVANNAH SESSION

Rivers' Address Stresses Religion's Need for Wide Program.

SAVANNAH, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Aldersgate session of the general missionary council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, closed here tonight with addresses by Governors Rivers, of Georgia, and Gordon Browning, of Tennessee.

Governor Rivers said if religion was to have the proper influence on public morals it must insist on a program to improve the home life, schools, public health and the security of the people.

Blessings of Taxation.

The Governor said this can be done only through taxation and urged his several hundred listeners scattered through Savannah's municipal auditorium to develop a psychology that would "stress the blessings of taxation rather than the burden."

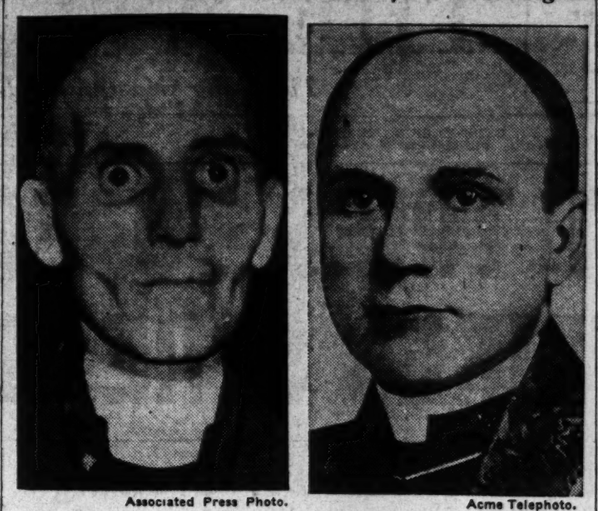
The Governor likened taxation to the principal of evaporation whereby the water of the ocean is lifted into the clouds by the sun and distributed evenly through the land, giving life to humans, stock and plants, alike.

He said that if it were not for John Wesley's lesson of tolerance of thought and tolerance of other people's thinking the world would not have Methodism today.

"Until you can inspire people to be good as John Wesley did when his heart was warmed, you need more religion," he said.

Rivers expressed the belief the "family altar" was the finest place to influence morals and next to that came the public schools, which he termed "thinking centers."

Dean Noe Since Fast and Before Starting It



Associated Press Photo. Acme Telephoto.

The Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe, of Memphis, Tenn., is presented in these contrasting photographs, which show how he looks today and how he looked before he started his now famous fast. Friends say he lived on orange juice alone from December 23, 1936, until he stopped taking even this form of nourishment on January 2, 1938. Since the latter date he has been taking only the thin wafer and sip of wine of the communion service, three times a week. When Dean Noe started his fast he weighed about 200 pounds. His weight now is said to be hardly more than 100.

is, to live in this world and not subject to this world; to live humanly yet decently; to use the gifts of the Father and not abuse them; to keep oneself unspotted from the world while living normally in the world and in natural, loving and understanding relationship with other men and women who are also God's children although they eat."

The brother, head of the diocesan church at York, and former archdeacon of the diocese of East Carolina, arrived this morning and departed for his home tonight.

"I feel there is nothing I can do in this matter," Dr. Noe said. "I believe my brother is thoroughly sincere and honest in seeking to achieve a spiritual plane of life denuded of life's material benefits.

"If my brother considers his action right, both as a brother and priest I must respect his opinion and his right to faith."

Thirteenth Fast Day.

Dean Noe busied himself at home with duties as dean of St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral on the 13th day of his unprecedented fast. Since January 2, he has had neither food nor liquids, having abandoned even the oranges on which he subsisted last year.

He hopes to provide living proof of the fact of immortality, demonstrating if "from a purely biological and medical standpoint from that new approach to it which all the leaders of medical science have not fully comprehended."

Those who attempt to persuade him to seek medical advice are told they cannot understand. Within some future date he hopes to prove "man can, here and now, put on the godhead bodily," with the help of God.

The dean's friends fear his early collapse is inevitable. But the dean, in public appearances, displays surprising vigor. His weight has dropped from nearly 200 pounds to half that amount. His only nourishment is the communion wafer and sip of wine at communion services thrice weekly.

Bishop James M. Maxon, his superior, is ill here with influenza.

MEMPHIS MINISTER TO PREACH ON FOOD

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Rev. J. Ralph Roberts, pastor of the Raleigh Christian church here, announced today his sermon topic Sunday would be "Man, His Earthly and Heavenly Food."

DR. FISHBEIN CRITICIZES ORANGE JUICE DIET

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said tonight he "could not recommend" the orange juice diet reported to have been maintained by the Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe, of Memphis, Tenn., for a year.

"I don't think a man could live very long on orange juice alone," Dr. Fishbein said when asked for comment. "I don't think he would be very comfortable at the end of a year.

"A diet of only orange juice fails to provide many of the essentials of a complete diet."

RECORD OF PHYSICIAN FASTING 40 DAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Dr. S. H. Tanner, Minneapolis physician, abstained from food for 40 successive days in the summer of 1880 to settle an academic argument with a colleague in the New York Neurological Society, records here disclosed today.

Dr. Tanner's performance was recalled in connection with the fast of the Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe, of Memphis, Tenn.

Dr. Tanner started the fast in New York on June 28, under the watchful eyes of a committee from the Neurological Society. For 18 days he took neither food nor water. Then he began drinking from 40 to 70 ounces of water every 24 hours. He discontinued this when the water appeared to cause distress.

When the fasting period was over on August 3, Dr. Tanner had lost in weight approximately 35 pounds, but suffered no other ill effects. His pulse and temperature remained almost normal throughout.

Rampage on Ramps! 4th-Story Auto Theft

Two young thieves took the hard way to steal an automobile last night, getting the car on the fourth floor of the Belle Isle U-Driv-It garage at 20 Houston street and speeding it down the ramps to the ground floor, making their get-away by crashing a red light at Pryor street.

They attempted to run over an employe who tried to stop them inside the garage. The employe, Melvin Granger, 21, leaped aside when the thieves cut toward him, ignoring his command to halt.

The car was then driven, tires screaming on the turns, down the ramps to the street before other employes could move to block it.

Officials of the company said the thieves probably walked up a stairway to the third floor and up the ramp to the fourth floor.

Grave To Honor Jobless Chinese, Who Aided Poor, Spurned Charity

An unmarked grave in Greenwood will form the setting for the glorification tomorrow of Lee Gam.

Death on Wednesday rolled down the curtain of a 62-year drama of poverty, struggle, business failure, ill health and unemployment, for a wrinkled little Chinese—a drama of commonplace interludes.

But all his life, from the time of his arrival as a child on the Pacific coast—legally or not, who cares?—the man from an exotic, flowery land now scarred by war had lived in a dream born of the traditions of his nationality.

Some day, he used to think, and his lips would purse in smiles, there would be veneration for the name of Lee Gam. The smiles did not fade when, after coming to Atlanta 25 years ago to open a laundry, he prospered. Nor did they vanish when, a few years later, business reverses came.

He forgot his troubles and got a job with a medicine company. But this did not last long, for ill health increased his deficiences. After a while he could not get a job of any kind.

Retains Cheerfulness.

The little oriental philosopher retained his cheerfulness, however, and over at the Chinese mission, where H. Lawrence Alexander is superintendent, his compatriots used to sit and listen to his great plans. Except for his contacts with other Chinese, who, like him, had embraced the Christian faith, he had become a recluse and lived at 9 1-2 Piedmont avenue, S. W.

Lee Gam was an enigma to many. He had no obvious means of support, and his friends guessed he was without funds. But somehow he lived on, scorning to accept their charity. He even surprised them at times, such as during the last Community Chest campaign, when he contributed some odd bits of change to help the needy of the city.

The Chinese Masons, some said, might have helped him, but if they had they did not tell anyone about it. The little man lived on, always cheerful in spite of his sufferings.

No Chinese Rites.

There will be no Chinese religious rites in Greenwood tomorrow. A few friends may attend services there at 1 p. m. and then they will go back to their places of business, their homes or to the mission.

And few people will know that the little plot of ground in Greenwood reserved for the burial of Chinese, has become a shrine. For it all fits into the dream of Lee Gam.

It will be regarded by other Chinese who visit the cemetery in years to come as the grave of an ancestor, and the memory of Lee Gam will be venerated, according to the custom of the Chinese. Occidentals may argue that Lee Gam could not be an ancestor. But many will not know, and will honor him.

And that was the hope of Lee Gam's dream.

Chances of Jobs For Engineering Students 'Good'

The engineering student who will graduate in June will have a "good chance" of getting a position, Thomas Chalmers, vice president in charge of operations of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company at Birmingham, Ala., told students at Georgia Tech last night.

"I am very optimistic regarding a bounce back from the recession in which we are now," declared the speaker. "I am not so sure you will have as good chance to get a job this year as last, but we are climbing back."

Present at the supper were approximately 150 persons, of which 85 were students. The others present included prominent mechanical, chemical, civil and heat and ventilating engineers of Atlanta.

The talk was sponsored by Atlanta chapters of the various national engineering associations. Mr. Chalmers came from Birmingham especially to make the speech. He led the discussion in a "bull session" which followed his talk.

Newsmen 'Softies' Chided by F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP) President Roosevelt, who called "softies" those newspapermen who complained of sleeping in heatless and leaking tourist cabins during a cold and wet overnight stop with him at Lake Crescent, Wash., last fall, carried the joke a step farther today.

He presented the reporters a painting of the lake, situated on Olympic peninsula, to be hung in the White House press room with this card in his own handwriting:

"To my boys: In memory of their heroic and uncomplaining courage—September 30, 1937. Franklin D. Roosevelt."

JAPANESE LOOTING PROTESTED BY U. S.

Consul Reports Soldiers Enter American Property at Nanking at Will.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The State Department announced today that the American embassy in Nanking has made a new protest to Japanese authorities over continued looting of American property there by Japanese soldiers.

American Consul John M. Allison at Nanking reported today that Japanese soldiers were continuing to enter American property and to remove goods and force out employes of American institutions without giving notice, or reasons, for their action.

The consul presumably referred to native Chinese employed in such institutions. There have been no reports of any detention of Americans there.

Allison said the most recent cases of such depredations had occurred within the last few days.

He addressed his protest to the Japanese embassy in Nanking to which he made similar representations almost a week ago on the same subject.

Judge Flays Women Who Gamble While Husbands Toil to Earn Bread

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(UP)—A bunch of the girls were whooping it up in Mrs. Sadie Borer's dining room, playing draw and stud and nicking each pot a nickel for a kitty to pay for the cards and drinks. In walks a man in a blue suit.

"Gambling, huh?" said Patrolman Anttony Churozzo.

"Sure," said Mrs. Borer, "dealer's choice, dime limit."

That was the evidence that Magistrate Charles Solomon heard in Flatbush court today—evidence that caused him to charge that Brooklyn women were neglecting their husbands and children so they could get together every afternoon and play poker. He said that husbands had come to him and complained about their wives gambling.

Benjamin Borer, however, was not one of the complaining husbands, because he posted $500 bail for his wife, Sadie, and issued a statement in her defense, to-wit:

"What if she does lose a buck or two? Isn't it better than sitting all afternoon in the movies?"

The technical charge against Mrs. Borer is that she permitted her apartment to be used for gambling. She admitted it. She said it had been going on for some time and that her defense was that a social game of poker was not a crime. Then Magistrate Soloman landed on her.

"Women who waste their time and substance in gambling while their husbands are working hard to keep up the household are a disgrace. There is a terrific lot of this going on in Flatbush and other parts of Brooklyn, where women are playing cards and gambling instead of taking care of their household duties. It is one of the most vicious practices I know of. It ought to be stopped."

Culbertson's No-Trump Bid System Discussed for Constitution Readers

Actual Play of Hands Will Be Illustrated by Harold Sharpsteen at Next Week's Three Classes Conducted in School of Bridge.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Constitution's contract bridge expert, Harold Sharpsteen, today explains the much-discussed Culbertson distributional no-trump opening for Constitution bridge fans. Similar points in bidding and play will be illustrated at next week's three classes in The Constitution's School of Bridge, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m. in the Biltmore Pompeian room. All classes are under Mr. Sharpsteen's personal direction.

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN.

Opening one no-trump bids are made in the Culbertson system for 1938, vulnerable or not vulnerable, any position at the table, on hands containing 3 1-2 to 5 1-2 honor tricks, in at least three suits, with a 4-3-3-3 suit distribution.

In the vernacular of the experienced player, it is designated as "the strong no-trump" opening.

With the same high-card content, but a 4-4-3-2 hand pattern, a shaded suit opening is preferred to one no-trump, restricting the no-trump to reveal precisely a balanced 4-3-3-3 hand pattern and at least a trick stronger than the minimum requirement for an opening suit declaration. In these two respects the opening is highly informative.

As a rule, it is not difficult to recognize a sound one no-trump bid. The correct response, as usual, becomes the tougher assignment.

Contrary to general misconception, a simple suit takeout to a no-trump opening is a weakness bid. It reveals a sound biddable suit but little or no high-card strength. As a matter of fact, a simple suit takeout discloses all the way from no honor tricks to one honor trick plus as a maximum.

With high-card strength, partner's preferred response is to raise the no-trump, except holding a strong rebiddable trump suit sufficient to justify a jump suit response.

BID TWO NO-TRUMP.

A raise to two no-trump is made holding:

1. One and one-half honor tricks in two suits, any distribution.
2. One to one honor truck plus in three suits.
3. One plus honor tricks in two suits with a Q x x x x or better.

BID THREE NO-TRUMP.

A raise to three no-trump is made:

1. Holding 2 1-2 H. T., any distribution.
2. Holding a six-card suit headed by one honor trick, with one-half an honor on the side.
3. Holding a five-card suit headed by 1 1-2 H. T., with one-half an honor on the side.

SUIT TAKEOUTS.

Take out in any biddable five-card suit holding less than one honor trick plus. Opener promises at least three cards in any suit named.

Respond with a jump suit takeout, holding 2-2½ H. T., with any rebiddable suit.

PASS.

Lacking any of the above responses, pass the opening no-trump.

HOW TO REBID.

Holding a bare minimum honor trick requirement, the original no-trumper passes a two no-trump response by partner. With added values he bids three no-trump.

Opening two no-trump bids require 5½ to 6 honor tricks, all suits stopped. Original three no-trump openings should indicate 6½ to 7½ H. T., inviting partner to try for a slam with added honor cards or a long suit.

JAPANESE REGAIN DESERTED TSINING

apart, equidistant from Sushow, the center of the Chinese resistance.

Japanese announced their southern column had captured Linhwaikwan, 15 miles southeast of Pengpu.

Changes Hands Frequently.

Tsining has changed hands time and again in the fighting of the last few days. The Chinese threat to the city was maintained because of their flanking movement against Yenchow, 20 miles to the northeast. A spur of the Tientsin-Pukow railway links the main line at Yenchow with the Grand canal at Tsining.

(At Tokyo the German ambassador, who recently was reported to have transmitted peace proposals to China, conferred with Foreign Minister Koki Hirota. Domei (Japanese news agency) said "important matters" were discussed.)

In the far northwest, reports through Chinese channels said 40,000 Outer Mongolian troops had moved into position along the border of Swiyuan province, which fell to the Japanese in the early months of the war.

Seek to Maintain Route.

These troops, considered under Russian influence, were said to be establishing a line to prevent Japan from cutting communications between China and Outer Mongolia, the route for any support from Russia.

Other war fronts were quiet except for Japanese air raids directed mainly at the railroad linking Hankow, one of China's temporary capitals, and Canton.

"And there was another routine airplane raid on Yingtak," the Japanese navy spokesman announced. The familiar words are included in his daily report at least three times a week. Yingtak—85 miles north of Canton—probably is the most bombarded spot in the world.

Its bombardment is typical of the efforts Japan is making to cut the 600-mile railroad and stop the flow of munitions from British Hongkong to the interior.

Communist Units Resist.

Chinese dispatches said the eighth army—the reorganized Chinese Communist units—was giving the Japanese determined resistance in northern Shansi province.

Two of the best known military figures in China were reported to have been relieved of their commands. Feng Yu-hsiang, China's picturesque "Christian general," was said to have been replaced by General Chen Chien, vice minister of war, as commander of the Peiping-Hankow railroad zone.

General Yen Hsi-shan, one-time virtually omnipotent governor of Shansi province, was reported to have been displaced by General Chu Teh, leader of the Chinese Communists, as commander of the guerrilla warfare in the north.

(Foreigners in Peiping estimated 100,000 Chinese Communists and irregulars were operating in North China, cutting Japanese communications and holding positions, in one case at least, only 20 miles from Peiping.)

Terrorists Shoot Two.

Terrorists, opposed to Japanese control, took further toll in Shanghai today. Two more highly-placed Chinese were shot and seriously wounded by the terrorists, who have vowed death to all Chinese suspected of co-operating with the Japanese.

The assailants of Y. T. Van, a prominent lawyer, and Y. L. Dau, a philanthropist, escaped.

Dispatches from Tsingtao, Shantung province port, said Japanese planned to take over the operation of the railroad between Tsingtao and Tsinan, capital of Shantung.

Chinese employes of the railroad were told the South Manchuria railway, a Japanese company, "with the army," was taking over the line.

Drivers' License Time Extended Until February

Time for obtaining drivers' licenses without examination has been extended to February 1, Major Phil Brewster, commissioner of public safety, announced yesterday following legislative approval of a resolution asking that the deadline be postponed two weeks.

The final date had been set for January 15 but legislators said many thousands of persons in the state have not yet obtained their licenses and that it was the wish of the administration for all to get the licenses without the necessity of taking a driver's examination.

FRANKLIN CANCELS THOMASVILLE TRIP; DENIES NEW PLANS

Explains That He Merely Has Deferred Selection of Place To Live.

A proposed three-day trip to Thomasville early next week for the purpose of seeking a residence was cancelled yesterday by John B. Franklin, superintendent of Grady hospital, but he denied that the shift in plans has anything to do with a possible reconsideration of his resignation.

"It will be impossible for me to leave the hospital next week because at present there is no one to take my place," Franklin declared. "The change in plans does not in any way affect my resignation and I will probably take the trip some time later."

The new board of trustees granted Franklin a three-day leave before dismissing Medical Director Joseph H. Hines at the organization meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Franklin had requested that he be given leave to go to Thomasville Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week "to make arrangements for a house." He will become superintendent of the John D. Archbold Memorial hospital at Thomasville on April 1.

Dr. Hines, who was granted his salary until March 1, remained at the hospital yesterday in an unofficial capacity. Under the action of the board he was relieved of his duties immediately, but he had previously asserted that he would remain at the hospital "for several days."

LAWYER SAYS MITCHELL HELPED IN 1929 PANIC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, of New York, heard his counsel describe him before the supreme court today as a man who "spent $30,000,000 during the panic of 1929 to stem the tide and protect the stockholders."

Government counsel called the banker "a tax evader."

At the conclusion of arguments, the high court took under advisement the government's effort to collect an additional 1929 income tax of $364,354 from Mitchell.

$125,000 Bridge Work in Georgia Planned by N., C. & St. L. President

Business Should Spend Now, Fitzgerald Hall Says on Visit Here.

FITZGERALD HALL.

Business should go forward with expansion and other plans instead of holding off until the indefinite future, Fitzgerald Hall, president of the N., C. & St. L. railway, declared here last night.

Mr. Hall was in Atlanta yesterday to attend a meeting of the sixth district of the Federal Reserve Bank.

In an interview on his special car, standing on tracks of the line in Union station, Mr. Hall revealed his company will probably spend between $125,000 and $150,000 in Georgia on bridges.

"When the board of directors of my company meets this month," he said, "I am going to recommend that we go ahead with plans and not wait until some distant, indefinite date.

"It seems to me that if business did this, instead of merely waiting and holding off, the country would be better off. I don't believe it is good policy to postpone spending money.

"The thing to do is just to go ahead, and not worry too much about the future."

He added that modification of taxes and "hands-off business" by congress would be helpful to the general welfare of the nation.

In revealing the plans for his company, Mr. Hall said a new steel bridge will be built at Resaca, Ga., and four other bridges in the state would be strengthened.

These include a bridge near Atlanta and one at Cartersville. The bridges would be improved to enable trains to operate at higher speeds over them, Mr. Hall explained. He came here from Nashville and entertained friends on the special car last night.

SENATE PROPOSES HOUSE AID ASYLUM

proposed the gasoline tax measure, while Representative Dugas sponsored the proposed levy on commodity transactions.

Representative Adams, of Franklin, sponsored the "economy" bill, proposing a general 20 per cent slash in the state pay roll. It would produce about $1,600,000 per year, according to the author, who based his calculations on a recent report of State Auditor Tom Wisdom showing the annual state pay roll to be approximately $8,000,000.

The Adams measure would be effective for one year from the date of passage.

Another new bill introduced today by Representative Gross, of Stephens, would require motor vehicle drivers to use arm signals in making turns or stops on the public highways and streets.

Harris Wants Liquor Taxes.

Speaker Harris issued a terse statement on the liquor situation as the legislature proceeded with routine matters pending consideration of the more controversial questions next week.

"Neither the speaker of the house nor the Governor have changed their positions, regarding the liquor bill," said Harris.

"The Governor is having nothing to do with either the defeat or the passage of the liquor bill.

"I am conscientiously opposed to exempting liquor from taxation and am doing everything I can to tax it.

"I voted in 1933 to tax it. I voted in 1935 to tax it. I think it has been exempted from taxation long enough.

"I am for taxing liquor before taxing only the necessities of life.

"Of course, if there are those who still desire the four or five millions gallons of liquor flowing through Georgia every year to be exempt from taxation, they have a right to their opinions."

Prepare for Test Tuesday.

Advocates and opponents of the liquor bill continued working hard in preparation for the final showdown Tuesday. If the bill is defeated then, it will be dead for this session.

The measure provides for the package sale of liquor in 12 counties, but advocates of the plan hope to make it applicable to only six counties—Fulton, Bibb, Chatham, Richmond, Muscogee and Dougherty.

Meanwhile Governor Rivers sent a communication to Speaker Harris and Senate President John B. Spivey, calling attention to the letter from Chairman Lucas concerning conditions in the hospital and urging funds be made available to correct them.

Lucas' letter was read to the senate yesterday on request of Senator J. Howard Ennis, of Milledgeville.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution approved by the senate concerning hospital funds follows:

Whereas, the senator from the twentieth district (Senator Ennis) in his place on the floor of the senate Thursday, in a dramatic manner presented in detail a series of unthinkably dangerous and horrible conditions existing at the state institution for the care and treatment of our unfortunate insane at Milledgeville, and

Whereas, the deplorable word-picture painted by the senator from the twentieth is amply supported by a letter presented by him to the senate, from Hon. Arthur Lucas, chairman of the State Board of Public Welfare, in which letter the declaration is officially made that buildings of this institution are veritable fire-traps, are unbelievably unsanitary; that the walls, flooring, ceiling and stairways of certain buildings have so decayed as to be at this time in a state of collapse, all of which Chairman Lucas states in his letter, is a continuous invitation and threat of dire calamity, and

Whereas, any catastrophe at this institution would seriously besmirch the name of the state of Georgia throughout the nation as a commonwealth which had so neglected its unfortunate dependents as to rank them below the grade of our common criminals by a neglected attitude which would be responsible for wholesale death and destruction, and

Whereas, all of this situation has been brought to the attention of the general assembly by the Governor of the state also, now

Be it resolved by the state senate that the house of representatives is respectfully requested and urged to immediately originate, pass and transmit to the senate an adequate appropriation bill designed to immediately correct the deplorable state of affairs existing at this state institution at Milledgeville, and that this action be followed by both branches of the assembly working out a definite program for the proper expenditure without further delay, and in such manner as will correct the evils and emergencies referred to. That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to his excellency, the Governor, and to the State Board of Public Welfare.

HOUSE RESOLUTION CRITICIZES REPORTER

By The Associated Press.

A legislative reporter for The Atlanta Constitution was criticized and defended in the Georgia house of representatives yesterday.

Ten representatives introduced a resolution which charged the reporter "has unwarrantedly, incorrectly and without authority quoted certain members and delegations of the house," in connection with the bill to legalize liquor in certain Georgia counties.

In the midst of a vigorous debate over the resolution, the house adjourned until Monday without acting on the matter.

Whipple Makes Charge.

Representative Whipple, of Bleckley, one of the signers of the resolution, told the house that today's paper "incorrectly stated that a dry spokesman had made overtures to the wet forces for a compromise on liquor legislation now before the house."

Representative Larsen, of Laurens, opposing the resolution, said: "How do you know someone did not give him this information? The Constitution would not be hiring a man who is not thoroughly capable and honest, and this resolution would not be fair."

Referring to the resolution, Larsen also told the house, "If you pass it, you will indict, try and convict a man without even giving him a hearing."

Signed by Whipple, of Bleckley; McCravey, of Union; Erwin, of Lamar; Reid and Beck, of Carroll; Carmichael, of Cobb; Brown, of Peach; Weaver, of Bibb, and Sams and Candler, of DeKalb, the resolution follows:

TEXT OF RESOLUTION.

Whereas, on several occasions in reporting proceedings in the house of representatives on a liquor bill, the reporter for The Constitution has seemingly deliberately misrepresented the facts.

And whereas, in at least three instances he has unwarrantedly, incorrectly and without authority quoted certain members and delegations of the house in connection with this bill.

And whereas, such incorrect reporting and misrepresenting of facts is so contrary to the policy of The Atlanta Constitution under the editorship of the late and sincerely lamented Clark Howell Sr.

And that this be considered notice to The Atlanta Constitution that if this reporter continues such incorrect reporting, his press privileges be withdrawn from him.

Now therefore, be it resolved by the house of representatives that we deplore this departure from the former policy of The Atlanta Constitution, and that The Atlanta Constitution be requested to take cognizance of this incorrect reporting, distortion of news and effort at propaganda on the part of their reporter.

And that we request The Atlanta Constitution to desist from publishing these wholly mythical and imaginary interviews which have no basis in fact outside the imagination of their reporter.

And that this resolution be considered notice to The Atlanta Constitution that if this reporter continues such incorrect reporting to his paper, his press privileges will be withdrawn from him and he will be denied the floor of the house and all other privileges accorded to newspaper reporters.

LEGISLATOR ATTACKS WAGE-HOUR FOES

State Representative Frank McNall charged on the house floor "opposition to the wage-hour legislation in congress comes from special interests and not from an interest in the south."

Speaking on personal privilege the Savannah legislator said he was not sponsoring any particular bill but was for the principle of wage-hour legislation.

Earlier this week Representative Robert Elliott, of Columbus, assailed southeastern Governors, and Governor E. D. Rivers, of Georgia, in particular, for indorsing wage-hour legislation in principle at a Washington conference.

McNall told the house "The motive behind the attack is the protection of special interests and not the south as a whole. Why is it that Congressman Eugene Cox, Democrat, Georgia, and other saviours of the south who have attacked the bill do not propose some humane legislation to protect the working girls of this state?"

He charged "those opposing the national administration in its efforts to improve conditions of the working class in the south, in favor of special interests, are doing it to get large contributions for their political campaigns in the future."

FREE SPEECH HERE! HULL ADVISES NAZI

Secretary Rejects Protest Against Ex-Envoy Dodd's Criticism.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Hull met an official German protest against a bitter anti-Hitler speech by former Ambassador William E. Dodd today with an explanation that American citizens enjoy the right of free speech.

Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, German ambassador, visited the State Department to tell Hull that Dodd, who recently resigned from the diplomatic corps after five years as American envoy at Berlin, had insulted Hitler in an address in New York last night.

In particular, he was aroused by Dodd's statements that under Hitler "almost as many personal opponents were killed in five years as Charles II (King of England) executed in 20 years of the 17th century," and that Hitler is "now more absolute than any medieval emperor of Germany."

Hull replied that Dodd had resigned his ambassadorship, was now a private citizen and therefore enjoyed the freedom of speech guaranteed him by the constitution.

GERMANY "HUSHES" DODD ANTI-HITLER SPEECH

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A three-line reference to the protest of the German ambassador, Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, to Secretray of State Cordell Hull was all that was permitted to be printed here today concerning the anti-Hitler speech of William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany.

STREETCAR AMBUSH ELUDED BY BANDIT

the end of the line on Lake avenue.

Defies Death Threat.

Fuller, threatened with death if he refused, was directed to crash into the blocking car and continue on. Instead, he threw on the car's emergency brakes, which opened all doors. The negro fled back toward Irwin and Elizabeth streets.

Jones and Smith leaped from their automobile and gave chase, opening fire with revolvers. At the first shot the negro fell to his knees but got up and ran on.

A Lake street resident, whose name police did not learn, saw the fleeing man and fired a pistol shot at close range. The thief staggered, threw up his hands and fell, but recovered again. The man's second and last shot missed its mark. Detectives, attracted by the shots, joined the chase here, but the fleeing negro managed to elude pursuers and his trail was quickly lost.

Four More Shots.

Four more shots were fired at the negro by a man listed by police as J. D. Buice, of 898 Lake avenue, who joined the chase when the thief ran past his automobile. He fired from a distance of 30 feet, but told officers he did not know whether he had hit him.

Police said two other private citizens fired shots at their quarry. They said he was seen to fall twice, apparently wounded each time.

He was described as being about 23 years old, six feet tall, of "gingercake complexion" and wearing a brown hat, black overcoat, brown tie and brown shirt.

Officers quickly warned doctors and hospitals that they were seeking a wounded man, but apparently he had not asked for treatment last night.

Filling Station Robbed.

Overalled shotgun bandits held up C. W. Sealey Jr., of 211 Lester avenue, East Point, attendant at a gasoline station at 211 Peters street shortly before midnight and escaped in a car after taking a money changer containing $21.

Sealey told police three young white men drove into the station in a 1936 model black coach, bearing license tags of which the first two numbers were "74." As he approached the car, one of the youths opened the door, poked a single-barreled shotgun at him and demanded cash.

He said two youths, wearing overalls and caps, were in the front of the car, while the third slumped in a rear seat.

Robbers Take $71.80.

Three armed negroes held up a chain grocery store at 379 Woodward avenue and escaped after taking $71.80 early yesterday morning.

The bandits herded into a rear room M. G. Hill, the manager; R. E. Thompson, manager of the meat department, and a customer, O. A. Manner, of 421 Woodward avenue. Manner saved $1.05 by tossing it into a barrel as he was being marched to the rear.

The bandits fled in an automobile.

Yeggs escaped with $55 and $5 in pennies yesterday after blowing a safe at the Nu-Way Market, 100 Broad street, S. W., according to police reports. The thieves entered through a skylight and moved the safe to the rear of the store. After blowing the safe, they moved it to its former position.

Mrs. J. B. DuBois, of 2 Sixteenth street, N. E., reported disappearance of a jewel case containing a diamond brooch valued at $3,000 from a bedroom of her home yesterday.

ADMITS KIDNAPING.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 14. (AP)—James D. Carrington, 24, of Chickamauga, Ga., today pleaded guilty in federal court to the June, 1935, kidnaping of George Chesbaro, Albany taxi driver, and interstate transportation of the stolen cab. He was sentenced by Judge Frederick H. Bryant to serve 11 years in a federal penitentiary to be designated by the attorney general.

Seeks To Save France

Georges Bonnet, radical Socialist diplomat and former French ambassador to the United States, who is trying to form a new government in the crisis due to labor and economic troubles.

BONNET TRIES JOB OF UNIFYING FRANCE

tracted crisis might loosen British-French ties and discourage American sympathy, leaving France virtually isolated amid western European rivalries.

So acute was the situation that France asked the League of Nations to postpone the council session scheduled for Monday.

The Bank of France suspended foreign exchange trading and gold and silver dealings until a new cabinet could be set up to handle the labor and financial troubles which overthrew the Chautemps regime.

The national committee of the people's front adopted a resolution declaring its mission not ended.

"In face of the domestic and foreign Fascist menace," the resolution said, "only a government of the people's front determined to apply its program can reply to the clearly manifested will of the country."

Bonnet Sees Chautemps.

Bonnet went straight from his interview with Lebrun to a conference with Chautemps.

Bonnet, 48 years old, was ambassador to Washington until last June, when he was recalled to take the finance portfolio in the second people's front government.

He would not disclose any plans he might have to replace the Communist support of the Chautemps regime in the event that extreme left wing of the people's front refused to follow his opposition to control of foreign exchange. Exchange control is a Communist objective.

Bonnet's consultations with Lebrun were understood to have been predicated on maintenance of freedom of foreign exchange, with a hope that the Communists in the chamber of deputies would acquiesce rather than risk a definite end of the coalition.

Dadalier Declines Post.

The President tried unavailingly to have Chautemps reassume the premiership and on his reiterated refusal tendered the invitation to Chautemps' war minister, Edouard Daladier, another Radical-Socialist, who likewise declined.

Lebrun also conferred with Leon Blum, Chautemps' predecessor and leader of the Socialist party which had been demanding that the office go to a Socialist. The nature of their talk was not disclosed.

FRENCH FRANC RISES IN NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The French franc climbed briskly in terms of the dollar today despite the fall of the Chautemps government and the suspension of all foreign exchange trading in Paris pending a clarification of the political situation.

The unit closed at 3.34 cents, a gain of .05 1-2 of a cent from yesterday's final quotations. Bankers ascribed the advance largely to covering by traders holding short positions, and said business was light.

The discount on francs for delivery in 90 days remained at .18 of a cent, yesterday's figure, but few transactions were reported.

See Danger to Agreement.

Bankers were somewhat concerned as to the franc's future, arguing that if the French control permitted it to seek lower levels, the tripartite currency agreement between Great Britain, the United States and France, by which extreme currency fluctuations were to be prevented, might be endangered.

This, they pointed out, might affect the relation of the dollar with other European currencies, such as the Swiss franc and Belgian belga, which are regarded as being in the French unit's "zone of influence."

Designation of former Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, however, to form a new cabinet, was regarded as an indication the franc would be defended if possible, and that permanent exchange restrictions would not be imposed.

Abandoned Oil Well Found Under School

OKMULGEE, Okla., Jan. 14. (AP)—For 17 years a rural school near here has perched over an abandoned oil well, but nobody knew it.

Then plumbers came this week to make repairs at the brick high school, attended by 100 children. They detected an odor of gas, prowled around beneath the floor and found the well.

Hurriedly, Superintendent V. E. Brians summoned oil well experts for advice, but tests showed gas seepage from the plugged well was slight. A vent was installed to carry it off.

5 STATES CONSIDER FIGHT ON SOUTH

Lehman Proposes I. C. C. Protest Against Southern Rate Reduction.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Representatives of five states conferred here today on the invitation of New York state to join it in opposing a move by southern states to obtain reduced freight rates and thus attract northern industry.

John J. Bennett Jr., New York's attorney general, said New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware would decide within a week whether they would make a joint protest to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The joint action was suggested by Governor Herbert Lehman, of New York, to help reduce costs.

New England states and midwestern states already have organized to present objections to the proposed rate reduction at an I. C. C. hearing in Birmingham, Ala., March 28.

The southern states seek a cut in the rates of freight moved from the south to northern points.

Bennett said after the conference that in the past industries which have moved south have employed southern labor and left their former workers unemployed in the north.

The conferees were Hilary Gans, deputy attorney general of Maryland; P. Warren Green, attorney general of Delaware; David T. Wilentz, attorney general, and Robert Peacock, deputy attorney general, of New Jersey; and Richard J. Beamish, Pennsylvania public utilities commissioner.

GERMANY WELCOMES YUGOSLAVIA PREMIER

ANNABERG, Germany, Jan. 14. (AP)—Premier Milan Stoyadinovich, first Yugoslav statesman to visit Berlin officially since the World War, was welcomed ceremoniously tonight when he entered German territory at this frontier station.

He was greeted by a guard of honor, headed by Chief of Protocol Buelow Schwante and high Nazi officials, who were to accompany him to Berlin, arriving there early tomorrow. Stoyadinovich's visit officially was a return call for the one Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, then minister of economics, made in Belgrade last June.

Gay Week in Store for Atlanta At Downtown Motion Picture H

Slapstick Comedy and Subtle Satire Contrast Human Drama and Fast-Moving Action of the Old West.

By AL HAILEY.

Slapstick comedy and subtle satire contrast with human drama and fast-moving action of the old west to entertain Atlanta's movie-going population for a week at downtown motion picture houses.

Here are "thumbnail" sketches of new shows which opened yesterday at downtown Atlanta theaters for a week's run.

PARAMOUNT—"First Lady," a gay farce of society and politics in the nation's capital, opened at the Paramount with the lovely Kay Francis as the clever and sophisticated lady who yearns to see her husband, a government official, holding the White House reins. With Preston Foster, Anita Louise and Walter Connolly in supporting roles, Kay rises to a new high in "First Lady."

RIALTO—It's a week of riotous comedy with a galaxy of film and radio stars, three nationally famous orchestras, and a big league baseball player—all in "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round." Phil Regan, Ann Dvorak, Leo Carrillo and a dozen other well-known Hollywood stars combine to keep entertainment at a high level. There are five song hits in the LOEW'S GRAND—The stagecoach and the "[illegible] are brought back to Loew's theater. "The Bad Man of Brimstone" brings Wallace Beery another of his pictures impressive roles. Action swiftly from start to finish is especially accelerated. Dennis O'Keefe, a new star as a prizefighter, comes in contact with Bad Man Beery. Virginia Bruce furnishes the interest.

FOX—Simone Simon's way to a new place in screen in "Love and Hisses," opens a week at the Fox theater. Bernie and Walter Winchell on their long-standing while Bert Lahr adds to general confusion with a comedy performance which ushers him into the film spotlight. Madon and Harry Revel contribute four new song hits.

For full reviews of the other new motion pictures shown here next week, read Constitution's new amusement page Sunday morning.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 15, 1938.

TRUTH FROM A REPUBLICAN

Colonel Frank Knox, running mate with Governor Landon on the national Republican ticket in 1936, expressed views in a speech this week at Cleveland which must have shocked many of the old-line, dyed-in-the-wool members of his own party.

For he came out, unequivocally, against high tariffs, which have been the keystone of Republican policy for generations.

Colonel Knox, of course, is incontestably right in his attack on the exorbitant tariffs which have for decades nailed the southern cotton farmer on an economic Calvary. And truth, even though it comes from a Republican source, is nevertheless truth.

"We must speak up in unmistakable terms," said Colonel Knox, "to those industries which through execssive tariff schedules have enjoyed a monopoly of the domestic market and thus inordinately increased the cost of living. We must say to them: If you do not believe in a system of direct subsidies from the government for the farmer, you must abandon your insistence for an indirect subsidy through excessively high tariff rates for yourselves. . . . The fiction of infant industry which must be protected against a more mature and competent foreign manufacturer is outworn. It is farcical."

It has been demonstrated that the southern farmer today pays more than $50 out of every $100 he receives for his cotton, as high tariff tribute to the manufacturers who make the products he must buy. Thus it is not, in actual practice, the importers of foreign-made goods who pay the bill for the protection the industry of the north and east enjoys, but the southern cotton farmer. It is that tribute that has held him, generation after generation, at the bottom of the scale in so far as cash income is concerned.

If industry is to continue to receive the benefit of excessively high tariffs it cannot in justice, as Colonel Knox points out, object to a direct subsidy to the farmers. For if one section of the nation's workers is to receive a subsidy, no less effective because indirect, in all fairness that other section, the agriculturist, should be subsidized too.

In America's political history it has been the Republican party which has been regarded as the champion of high tariffs. Yet, during the five years during which the Democrats have held the greatest popular majority of all time, there has been no direct effort to lift this tariff burden from the shoulders of the farmers of the nation.

Fortunately relief, in some degree, is being achieved through the efforts of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, through the reciprocal trade treaties he is effecting, one by one, with foreign countries. These treaties are gradually lowering the tariff walls.

With these treaties already concluded with 16 nations and with the most important of all, that with Great Britain, likely to be consummated at an early date, Secretary Hull is achieving a goal that should win for him the gratitude of every farmer in the nation.

And even the gratitude, as Colonel Knox indicates, of some factions in the Republican party.

"NO ROOM FOR SUCH AS I—"

Standing to receive sentence for an offense to which he had pleaded guilty, a prisoner in the federal court this week told Judge E. Marvin Underwood, "I can't get a job. There's just no room for a fellow like me." He had recently been released after completing a prison term for an earlier crime.

Judge Underwood concurred with the prisoner that it is difficult for one with the record of an ex-convict to step back into ordinary society and re-establish himself. Society, said the judge, has been slow in development, but nevertheless everyone must do the best he can with the facilities available. The judge closed with the hope that, when the new sentence is over, the man before him would be able to find a job and win an honest place in life.

It is an ancient excuse of repeaters in violation of the law, to explain that they have been unable to find honest work because of their record. That excuse is not so valid today, as once it was. It is still, in many instances, undoubtedly true, but society has gained in sympathy, has progressed in understanding and has grown in kindness toward those who, having once misstepped, would try again to walk the right pathway through life.

Penal institutions of today are far better places than those of a century ago. Yet they still constitute, to too large a degree, schools of crime, where novices learn from professional law breakers.

Some day prisons will become, as they should be, institutions to create good citizens out of bad, and society as a whole will extend a helping hand to the brother or sister who has erred. Until that day arrives, however, each man or woman can only, as Judge Underwood said, do his best under conditions as they are.

DEFINING "NATIONAL DEFENSE"

The Women's Conference on National Defense for an Enduring America will meet in Washington on January 25, 26 and 27. Many leading educators, thinkers, public men and statesmen will speak.

The program for this conference in itself constitutes a valuable lesson to all Americans, for it deals with national defense in a manner so broad as to emphasize, once again, the truth that freedom as enjoyed in the United States today can only be preserved through the constant, daily vigilance of every loyal citizen.

The armed forces of the nation, the army, navy, marine corps and air forces, are relegated to a comparatively small place on the program. Their importance is not overlooked, but they do not constitute the principal theme. They are the concluding group of defense factors listed.

Ahead of these material shields of the nation, and given leading place on the agenda, are the more spiritual means of defense of everything dear to the American tradition.

Defense of American ideals, social, ethical and governmental, to assure an enduring America, is the principal thought to be stressed.

"The conference," says an advance announcement, "will emphasize the constitution, our tripartite form of government and the civil rights bill as our basic national defense. It will discuss our safeguards at home, such as education for citizenship, freedom of speech and religion, government's service to youth, preservation of our national health, and the like. In addition, it will discuss our safeguards abroad, such as trade treaties, neutrality and international arbitration."

The keystone of defense of the American ideals lies in making certain that the oncoming generations receive, undimmed, the torch of liberty lit by the fathers a century and a half ago. It rests most securely in the hands of citizens who understand, in full, the privileges and responsibilities of their citizenship and who are so imbued with the spirit of Americanism that they are not only ready to defend the nation with their lives, if necessary, in time of emergency, but their daily life is motivated with a jealous determination to permit no infringement, either from so-called friend or foe, of the liberties their forefathers won.

Eternal vigilance, today as always, is the price of liberty.

A NEW AMBASSADOR

Confirmation by the senate of President Roosevelt's appointment of Joseph P. Kennedy to be United States ambassador to the Court of St. James, at London, gives to this country a representative who, by every past record, will ably fill America's most important foreign diplomatic post.

Mr. Kennedy has served the nation with distinction as chairman of the Securities Commission and, more recently, as chairman of the Maritime Commission. In the latter post he has been faced with a critical situation in the United States Merchant Marine due to reported lax discipline among crews which have tried to apply the practices of some factions of organized labor on land to their work while at sea. Including "sit-down" strikes.

That condition is not yet fully cleaned up, but if congress and the Labor Department will follow the recommendations already made in the Kennedy report it will not be impossible to find a satisfactory solution.

In assuming the ambassadorship to Great Britain, Mr. Kennedy undertakes several assignments of vital importance to the future peace of the world and the welfare of humanity. He will have large part in the pending discussions between Great Britain and the United States Department of State on the proposed trade treaty between the two countries. Satisfactory conclusion of this treaty, it is generally conceded, will do more than anything else possible to lift the friction-causing impediments in the channels of world trade and will draw the two great English-speaking democracies in yet closer bonds of mutual self-interest and friendship.

Mr. Kennedy also takes over the British post at a time when world affairs are in more precarious status than they have been since the World War. Both in the Orient and in Europe, it is clear that the future of democracy rests largely upon the united front put up by the United States and Britain. Despite the bombastic arrogance of power-drunk dictators, the two great democracies, standing shoulder to shoulder, can still mould the shape of world affairs and can still lead the way to world peace and security.

Candidates for the high court vacancy left by the resigned justice, Sutherland, will please stand by with all lodge papers and a full set of X-ray films.

Editorial of the Day

THE SHOE ON THE OTHER FOOT

(From The Asheville Citizen)

Economic laws are grimly impartial. They know no permanent exceptions and play no favorites.

When revenues fall, expenses must fall or ultimate bankruptcy is the inevitable consequence for the hapless industry.

Business has long since learned this bitter truth. Those enterprises which were slow to practice it in the late depression were forced into receiverships.

Labor organizations are now learning the same lesson to their own embarrassment for they are forced by factors beyond their control to practice unsentimental economics which they have often criticized in employers.

Some time ago the CIO announced that as a consequence of the recession it was dropping many organizers from its pay rolls. The UAW now follows suit by stating that it will be compelled to reduce its employes.

Of course, every employe of industry or a labor organization who is rendered idle swells the ranks of the unemployed, decreases the purchasing power of the country and aggravates the general situation.

This is the tragic pity of it—but until the man has contrived some way to circumvent the relentless operation of economic laws, there is no permanent alternative. The most that can be expected is that no employer drop any employe until the solvency of his own business is in immediate or prospective peril. After all, the considerate employer has certain obligations of elemental decency and of reciprocal interest that should make him feel at all times a deep and continuing interest in the welfare of all who are dependent upon him for their livelihood.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

BIG SPENDING PROGRAM WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Within a very few weeks the strange presidential maneuverings of the last two months will come to their logical conclusion—the presentation to congress of a big spending program. The spending will be for housing, and it will be done by the Works Progress Administration.

That, at least, is the present determination of the White House, according to the best available information. How much will be spent on the proposed WPA housing has not been decided. Marriner S. Eccles' remark before the senate committee on unemployment, that the immediate expenditure of $1,000,000,000 would end the depression, may be taken, however, as an important straw in the wind.

With prompt and heavy spending, followed by effective anti-monopoly action, the President, it is said, is positively convinced that a handsome spring upturn will be followed by healthy and permanent recovery.

All the queer backings and fillings on economy, all the loud and low blasts against monopoly, have simply been calculated to make such a program feasible. The desire was to make the situation more "malleable" both in congress and in the country. Now the President feels that this objective has been achieved. He believes that he is master once more, and is ready to give the word of command.

THE THOUGHT BEHIND IT ALL The program originates among the left-wing advisers of the White House. One of its most important sponsors, although not the man who sold it to the President, is Leon Henderson, the WPA economist who called the turn on the depression nine months ahead.

The key to the whole problem is that Mr. Henderson, the other, more influential left-wingers, and now the President himself are all ardent converts to the purchasing power theory of the business cycle. Since the depression proved him a good prophet, Mr. Henderson and his friends have ardently advocated prompt spending to increase purchasing power as the short-term remedy.

The long-term remedy is anti-monopoly action. The left-wingers are convinced that monopolistic price practices destroyed purchasing power last spring, and thus brought on the depression. They believe that aggressive and successful action against monopoly will permanently cure the dislocation in the business cycle, by preventing recurrent contractions in purchasing power. The President is confident that the depression is licked, simply because he accepts his left-wing friends' theories, and cheerfully plans to put them into practice.

STRATEGY BORN OF THE THOUGHT Obviously, this explains much that has been insanely puzzling in the past month or so. The fact that an immediate spending program is planned in conjunction with it, makes the sudden anti-monopoly crusade look far less accidental. The same fact also clothes with slightly Machiavellian good sense the presidential maneuvers in the matter of economy.

There have been three important ones. First, the President demanded large cuts in road appropriations, which are dearer than any others to the hearts of legislators. Second, he asked for a reduction in CCC projects, which the boys on the hill love next best after roads.

Thus, he prepared to put scores of congressional economizers on record as opposed to the first economy suggestions to emanate from the White House.

Then he asked for an immense increase in naval armament appropriations, which is sure to command much conservative support. Thus, he put the senators and congressmen in a mood to ask why, if so much was to be given the navy, they would not get the millions they desired for their states and districts.

Now the President and his advisers believe that both their battles are won. For example, they attribute the recent heavy reemployment in Detroit automobile factories to terror struck by their anti-monopoly crusade in the hearts of the manufacturers. And they consider that, before long, congress will be ready to accept docilely a presidential recommendation for WPA spending of hundreds of millions on housing.

SIGNS AND PORTENTS An odd sign that the President thinks victory is now his was the recent White House conference with Alfred P. Sloan, Ernest T. Weir, Colby M. Chester, and other prominent and exceedingly powerful industrialists.

The idea for this conference is understood to have been the President's own. It is understood that, in the first place, he wanted to show the great men of business who was master, in the most genial manner possible, and that, in the second, he wanted to prove his statement that the "White House door is always open." Beyond that, the conference had no significance.

As for the mood of congress, indications have been plentiful in the past weeks that economy was dead on the Hill. The murmurings started by the armament spending demand, the gloom of the economizers, above all the fact that Vice President John N. Garner, chief campaigner for economy, has been privately admitting the thing was hopeless, all prove this.

And so the time is now at hand when the spending recommendation will go to the capitol. A WPA housing program was chosen because the great need for housing made it defensible, and because it could be put in high gear at once. To judge by the look of things, it is inevitable unless a sudden presidential change of mind upsest all the left-wingers' plans.

Roll of Honor.

NEW YORK.—The New York Times has this to say editorially, on the recent death in Spain of three American newspapermen: To the honor roll of newspapermen dead in line of duty must be added the names of three men who fell last Friday on the road to Teruel, Richard Sheepshanks, Brandish Johnson and Edward J. Neil. Two earlier casualties, in another sphere of war, were Pembroke Stephens, killed at Shanghai, and Sandro Sandini, mortally wounded when the Panay was sunk. A New York Times correspondent, Anthony J. Billingham, was badly hurt when a bomb snuffed out scores of lives in the Sincere Department store in Shanghai last August. The campaigns in Ethiopia, Spain and China have taken their toll in hardships, sickness and wounds suffered by the men who get and write the news. Those who escaped have taken the same risks. The Times correspondent, with the Government forces in Spain, Herbert L. Matthews, has typed out his dispatches in a building which was being shelled. When Mr. Matthews wanted to know whether or not the road from Madrid to Valencia was open he hailed a taxi and went to see for himself. The road was open, but Mr. Matthews was lucky to escape the shells and machine gun bullets which the Insurgents were firing into it.

Reporter's Risks.

The reporter takes some of the risks the soldier takes. Indeed, the only one he escapes are those of front-line combat—and those only because the high commands won't let him sun himself under a barrage or take his notebook and pencil (in case he has a notebook and pencil; at home he has usually lost them) over the top. But there is a difference between the soldier and a reporter which demands of the reporter a different, possibly a higher type of courage. The soldier must work himself into a killing mood. His emotions must be kindled to a destructive fury. The reporter has to keep calm because that is the only way in which he can do a good job of reporting. Not for him the glory of the captured town or the broken enemy line. He can hardly help sympathy for the individual soldiers with whom he has talked, eaten and marched, but the better he is as a reporter the more objectively he tells his story. He risks his life, not to help one side or the other win the battle, but consistency, the unflinching eye, the steady hand of neutrality trying to probe and perhaps in the end abolish the tragic mystery of war. He deserves, as well as any soldier, to have his exploits some day lettered in imperishable bronze.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

JESUS IN GALILEE.

Sunday's lesson, Mark 1:14-28, takes us another step in the study of Christian service. Jesus has come from Judea where He had ministered for several months, probably at the close of 27 A. D., and will make Capernaum His headquarters for the Galilean ministry. John the Baptist, of whom we studied in last Sunday's lesson, has been thrown into prison by Herod. Jesus takes up the theme of John, preaching "the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe the Gospel."

Thus we have the Master pictured as the perfect example of Christian service as He goes forth evangelizing, enlisting, enlightening, and expelling—evangelism, which is proclaiming the saving Gospel to all men; enlistment, which is calling the saved to definite service; enlightenment, which is teaching the people as one having authority; expulsion, which is casting out the evil. Let us heed this clear call to Christian service.

I hope you will open your Bible to the lesson passage and note the marvelous developments within these brief and inclusive sentences. We see the Son of God preaching the Good News to plain people. He gives His sanction to preaching, both as to method and message. And we see the Son of God in personal touch with men, calling out the called. "Follow Me," He said, "and I will make you to become fishers of men." He is calling men today—businessmen, farmers, professional men, poor men, rich men, white men, black men, city men, country men. Again we see the Son of God instructing these disciples that they may be trained men, good workmen. Jesus does not place any premium upon ignorance. He wants the best at its best. Finally, we see the Son of God casting out demons. He will not compromise with sin. Sin is contraband in His onward marching army. No sin is too great for him. He hates sin. He loves sinners.

And in this great example of Christian service, we see Jesus as He plumbs every depth of human need—sickness and poverty and sorrow and loneliness. He saves from sin. He teaches. He heals. He inspires and empowers men and women to lose themselves in joyful service. He is saying to you and to me, "As the Father hath sent Me, so send I you."

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Night Out In New York NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—I was going to write some aggressive remarks about something or other, but I think there might be much more interest in a straightaway account of a night out in New York.

Well, the war department had been complaining that she never saw any shows any more and might as well be living in Grand Island or Billings, when down popped a pair for the opening of "Tortilla Flat." So we went and felt sorry for all concerned in the play, because, after all their effort and expense, it is just a pop fly and you could see in the faces of the actors that they were not deceived by the kind applause.

So after that we decided to go to the Stork Club and agreed that it was to be for just one. Sherman Billingsley got us a nice table and sat down for a minute.

The band was squawking away. A lot of Cuban or South American god-awfuls, one right after another, and the customers were out on the little floor circling and staring at one another in those Latin-American dances, like pit cocks sparring to strike.

Two More Sad Victims Katherine Brush came in with a big guy named Hulbert, a Saturday Evening Post guy, and it turned out they had been at "Tortilla Flat," too, and thought about the same as we did.

Then after a while, who comes ambling over but old Bleeding Heart Broun with Connie, and they sit down, and I get to thinking how cockeyed this is for us to be dramming together when it is only a few hours since I took a belt at him in print in retaliation for a clout that he took at me a couple of days before. I suppose he is thinking the same thing. I know he hates my tripes politically, and I know it is mutual if not more so, but we never talk about such things, and I guess we are pretty good friends out of print. But, hell, I didn't start it. I was just running my peanut stand and minding my own business when he started yelling "Pegler sells lousy peanuts!" What am I supposed to do? Boost his peanuts?

Then a little bloke sat down and said, "Why, do you know a guy named Seltzer, the editor of the Cleveland Press?" It was Leonard Lyons, the Broadway columnist. "Because how about this? He cancels me out of his paper because he has got too much Broadway coverage, and he keeps McIntyre!"

Night Work Well, that is kind of funny because this little Lyons hustles ten big clubs and saloons every night, with a notebook, and, honestly, McIntyre still thinks 34th street is 'way uptown.

Lyons never drinks, not even coffee, and he tells how when he gets home at 6 a. m. and says "good night," the elevator man thinks he is drunk, and how his baby is just waking up when he gets in and just being put down when he starts back to work at 4 in the afternoon—the gay life of a Broadway bon vivant.

Betty Lawford, the girl who takes a bath in "The Women," is there, and five cute little dolls—society, I suppose you could call them—surround a table for a thing I never heard of before—a girl's bachelor supper. One is getting married, and the others are going to be her handlers. This is her party for them. No blokes—all dolls.

The old Mahatma suggests that the orchestra play "The Internationale," but it only plays some more Cuban. Billingsley sits over in a corner counting up, for it is now 4 a. m. and the war department is jerking nods toward the door and wishing, by this time, that—no kidding—she did live in Grand Island or Billings.

Question Box On the Bible

By W. L. PETTINGILL.

SUFFERERS IN THE GREAT TRIBULATION.

Q. Will the whole world, including the United States and Canada, suffer the plagues of the Great Tribulation, or will the Holy Land and the Jews and their enemies suffer the worst of it?

A. The Great Tribulation will involve the whole world. In Rev. 3:10 (Revised Version), it is described as "the hour of trial, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth." But that Palestine and Israel will be the center of this world-wide "trial" is clear from such Scripture as Jer. 30:4-7, which says that "that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble, but he shall be saved out of it." Israel's enemies will also be at that time visited by the wrath of God (Psa. 2:5; Isa. 51:22, 23; Joel 3:2).

Another Letter From a Ba Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

I could not feel more deeply concerned if I had seen you pla with poisonous snakes.

Last night I saw you reading a book written by a noto agnostic. It is a witty, brilliant, plausible work, and its usual e is to make the reader feel that his faith in God classifies hir one of the superstitious simpletons. It makes him ashamed of belief, and prompts him to join the scoffers in order to escape scorn, and thus prove himself modern and smart.

It is hardly possible to read such books without doing you irreparable injury.

Don't get the idea that I wish to preserve your faith by hi from you the truth that would destroy it.

If one of these clever agnostics had discovered the truth, I w urge you to read it though it contradicted everything you now lieve, for truth is good and holy and cannot harm you.

But they do not offer you one grain of truth. They merely cule and scoff, and in the end they have taken from you somet fine and left you nothing in return but doubt.

Now, there are well-meaning, intelligent people who say: people read everything they wish. If their faith can't survive criticism, it isn't worth much."

That sounds reasonable, but it exposes their ignorance of hu nature and the nature of love.

We speak of different kinds of love, such as love of God, a m er's love and the love of friends, but all love is love, differing in degree. It is always the same emotion, and always a myster thing over which we have no control.

You are happy because you have certain people to love. didn't make yourself love them. It just happened.

Now, suppose someone should write something about all t people that would make you doubt and suspect them and so c pletely destroy your love. Would you think it a kindly serv My dear, it would destroy your happiness entirely.

That is why I warn you against the poison of agnostic bo

Your love for God—your faith and trust in Him—is a prec gift. It will give you solace and strength and peace all your But once destroyed, it is gone forever, with nothing to take place. And deliberately to risk losing it is to gamble with y whole life's happiness.

Library Use Under Difficulties.

A lady who lives in Adamsville read the story, told here last Sunday, about the "Wilderness Library" established deep in the Ozark mountains for the benefit of the residents.

And the Adamsville reader wonders if something couldn't be done to make library facilities a little easier for herself and for her neighbors. A little less expensive, too.

She points out that, to reach the Carnegie library in Atlanta involves the expenditure, for her, of much time and at least $1.25 in hard-earned cash, which she just can't spare.

It costs, she says, 50 cents to get someone to stay with her children while she makes the trip to town.

From Adamsville to the end of the car line there is a bus fare of 30 cents. And the street car ticket is a matter, we all know, of 7 1-2 cents. Add in the return trip and you get your $1.25.

"So," the writer of the letter concludes, "if one needs references of any kind, one does without. Sometimes I wonder why large libraries don't have branch libraries in reach of all."

Personally, I don't know, off hand. But I understood there were a number of branches of the Carnegie. Also that the PWA or some other federal agency had established a system of traveling libraries to visit the rural areas. Perhaps Adamsville is just off the library trail, unluckily.

The Values Of the Library.

I have no doubt the Carnegie library is performing one of the most efficient services of any public institution in the city. It is quite a long time since I've been inside, but you can't pass the place at any time, while it is open, without seeing people entering and leaving in numbers.

Also, if you want to discover an odd piece of information, there isn't any surer way of getting it than to ask the library. Those information experts there must be grand people. For no question seems to be too insignificant or too unusual for them to answer.

I've formed a habit, whenever something comes up that can't be answered out of my own reference books, of telephoning the library. They never—or hardly ever—fail. I've known 'em to take a week or more, sometimes, when they have to send inquiries out of town.

But the answer always comes back, eventually. Sometimes when the need has passed, but doesn't matter. They are ders, that's all.

A Disadvantage Of City Life.

It has been stated, by some tronomer, that people of an times were much more fam with the stars and the patter the heavens at night, bec there were not the high-pow lights we know today, to obs the upward vision.

Maybe. But the same argu would hold good if he had that people who live in the c try know the stars better those of town. For, after all, strong lights are usually not fo in the rural areas.

And he would, quite li have been right in both s ments.

There is nothing more co cive to peace and calm for a ried soul than contemplatio the stars, at night. Whether explain them according to theory or according to ano they bring a great sense of etude if you spend some looking up.

They will, at any rate, imp you with your own insignific in the scheme of creation make you realize that, after your personal woes and trou are of small moment in the sch of things entire. They induc most salutary humility.

LAWMAKER FIGHTS WITH NEWSCASTER

Blows Follow Charges Some Solons Can Be 'Bought' for Pound of Tea.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Shortly after State Representative Edward P. Bacigalupo, Democrat, swapped blows with Leland G. Bickford, radio commentator, in a state house corridor, Bacigalupo late today filed an order seeking an investigation of the news service employing Bickford.

The exchange of blows came at the close of a hearing into Bickford's charge that some legislators could be "bought for from $100 down to a pound of tea."

The order, if approved by the legislature, would investigate also the Eastern Racing Association, which operates Suffolk Downs horse racing track, and the New England Anti-Gambling Association, Inc., sponsors of legislation to abolish horse and dog racing.

The representative, portly and black haired, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing approximately 260 pounds, left the building with a cut and bleeding lip.

The commentator, 35 years old, standing 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 225 pounds, came off with a cut and bruised right hand.

BRITAIN TO AWAIT IRISH UNION ACCORD

Chamberlain Will Insist Agreement Be Reached Before London Considers

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—British officials indicated today Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain would tell Prime Minister Eamon De Valera, of Ireland, to settle all questions of union with northern Ireland before bringing them to London.

The union apparently depended on the forthcoming election in northern Ireland, where any such move toward Ireland (formerly the Irish Free State) seemed doomed.

De Valera was scheduled to confer with Chamberlain Monday on matters of defense and common action in external affairs. De Valera was reported determined, however, to make no firm political agreement unless Great Britain takes some step to bring about Irish unity.

The new constitution of Ireland frankly takes a united Ireland view.

Judge Stone then took under advisement similar motions on behalf of the remaining 16 major oil company and 36 individual defendants. When the oil trial started last October 4, there were 23 corporate and 46 individual defendants.

Thomas Quigley Receives Gavel From Educators

Thomas H. Quigley, professor of industrial education at Georgia Tech, and recently elected president of the American Vocational Association, was presented a set of historical books and a gavel yesterday at a luncheon given in his honor.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, made the presentation.

The staff of the Georgia Association of Vocational Education and members of the staff of the state department of education attended the meeting. M. D. Mobley, director of vocational education in this division, was one of the principal speakers. Dr. Collins presided.

The gavel presented Quigley was made of wood grown on the farm of the late Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, co-author of the Smith-Hughes vocational education act, and was constructed by the students enrolled in the Georgia Vocational Trade school at Monroe.

LYNCH BILL FOES DENOUNCE ICKES

tistics in Washington and New Orleans. He said they had about the same population. His data showed much more crime in Washington.

"If I thought for a moment that this bill would stop lynching, or even help prevent it, I would not be here talking," he said.

"I dislike to see the senate take a slap at the south," Ellender continued. "We are law-abiding citizens. We are enforcing the laws. Let us alone. Don't open those old wounds."

AFL Scored.

"The American Federation of Labor has seen fit to take part in this, why I don't know. If the officers of the American Federation of Labor had taken time to study this legislation instead of listening to a lot of 'hooey' about it, they would not be supporting it."

Ellender read at length from the record of the proceedings of the Federation convention in Denver last fall.

Parliamentary Snarl.

At the close of the day the senate became enmeshed in a parliamentary snarl over a motion by Barkley to table a motion made by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee. It took three roll call votes to develop a quorum more than an hour later.

Senator Miller, Democrat, Arkansas, touched off the fireworks shortly before 5 o'clock, while Senator Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, was attacking the measure by demanding a quorum call.

Earlier, the senate had sent out its sergeant at arms to round up senators when less than half of the membership of the senate, or 49, had responded to a roll call.

When only 43 senators answered on Miller's demand, the sergeant at arms, at the insistence of Barkley, rounded up enough of the absentees. Senator McKellar then moved to relieve the sergeant of arms of that duty and Barkley countered with a motion to table McKellar's motion.

After two roll calls on the motion to table had failed to develop a quorum, the obviously angered majority leader warned senators that he would insist that the senate remain in session.

Warns Members.

"I understand that a number of senators are in the vicinity of the senate who have not answered these roll calls," Barkley said. "I wish to serve notice that, as long as the majority supports me, we propose to stay here until we get a quorum if it takes all night."

The third roll call disclosed a vote of 36 to 11 in favor of Barkley's motion, but Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, presiding, ruled that two senators were present but did not vote. He found thus that there was a quorum present and that the motion carried.

Senator Barkley announced then that the senate would meet at 10 a. m. (Atlanta time) tomorrow, an hour earlier than usual.

TAX REPORT HELPS SMALL COMPANIES

Subcommittee of House Suggests 63 Changes in Undivided Profits Levies.

Democrat, Kentucky, defended the proposed changes as fair and predicted that they would stimulate business without reducing the aggregate federal revenue which President Roosevelt warned must not be disturbed.

Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the full committee, said hearings on the proposals would begin tomorrow and that Treasury officials who aided Vinson's group would be the first witnesses. Administration leaders hope to enact a bill embracing the subcommittee's recommendations by mid-March.

The Vinson committee, which worked under vigorous pressure from business for complete repeal of the controversial profits tax, struck back at these demands today.

"Your committee has examined these complaints, that the surplus profits levy has retarded expansion and penalized weak and debt-ridden corporations, and believes there has been much exaggeration as to the hardships in the great majority of the cases," the report said.

Would Clarify Tax Laws.

In addition to changes in the tax structure the subcommittee urged recodification of the internal revenue statutes to clarify their meaning, speed tax collections and simplify enforcement.

The most important individual change suggested was exemption of small corporations—those earning $25,000 or less annually and comprising about 90 per cent of the nation's 200,000 business concerns—from the undistributed surplus tax.

The present undistributed surplus tax, which was designed to force corporations to pay dividends to stockholders and thus subject the dividends to income levies, imposes a scale of 7 to 27 per cent on the total withheld. In addition, corporations are required to pay "normal" taxes ranging from 8 to 15 per cent.

The report proposes as a "general rule" a tentative tax of 20 per cent on corporations earning more than $25,000 per year, but allows a credit of four-tenths of 1 per cent for each 10 per cent of earnings declared as dividends. Thus, if a corporation made a 100 per cent distribution, it would reduce the tax to 16 per cent.

For Smaller Corporations.

For the smaller corporations the subcommittee recommended a normal tax of 12 1-2 per cent on the first $5,000; 14 per cent on the next $15,000, and 16 per cent on the last $5,000. The rate, on this basis, would be 14.1 per cent for a $25,000 income.

The committee proposed a complicated "notched" system so as not to penalize corporations earning just over the $25,000 limit. It would permit the placing of certain types of income in brackets up to $25,000 and place the balance in the higher tax level. It urged also that corporations having net operating losses during any year after December 31, 1937, be allowed to carry over the loss into the succeeding taxable year as an offset against gains.

Other Changes Urged.

The subcommittee also proposed, as an incentive to profit-taking, changes in the present capital gains and losses taxes which are levied on normal income on a scale down to 30 per cent after 10 years. The changes would permit taxpayers with losses, now limited to $2,000, to carry over additional sums to be offset against gains in the following year.

It also would permit taxpayers with high income the option of accepting a flat rate of 40 per cent on capital gains or the regular surtax rate. Experts said this would assist those with income above $65,000 because the rate under the option would be from 16 to 30 per cent.

In addition, it urged that maximum relief be granted under the tax at the end of five years instead of the present 10. Gains taken in less than one year would be taxed on the basis of 100 per cent, as at present, but would be scaled down as held to a minimum of 40 per cent after five years.

OFFER OF $75,000 AND 4 PLAYERS MADE FOR MUNGO

Cubs' Proposal Turned Down; Dodgers Not Satisfied With Players.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs have made a new offer of $75,000 and four players to the Dodgers for Van Lingle Mungo, but the Brooklyn club is not satisfied with the playing material it would receive in the transaction, it was learned from a reliable source today.

The Cubs offered, in addition to cash, First Baseman Collins, infielder Lonnie Frey (an ex-Dodger), Outfielder Joe Harty and Pitcher Clyde Shoun.

The Dodger reply, in effect, was, "We want better players and less cash."

The Cub offer was made by a club official, who visited the Dodger office a few days ago. Vice President Jim Mulvey, of the Brooklyns, turned down the bid, in the form it was made.

A deal for the Dodgers' fireball pitching ace has been on the fire ever since last season. The Cubs and New York Giants have been reported in the van of the bidding, but recently, the Giants were said to have ceased negotiations, because of the Dodgers' demand that Mel Ott be included in any transaction.

SABIN IS VICTOR IN SEMI-FINALS OF MIAMI MEET

Bobby Riggs Plays Elwood Cooke Today; Finals Sunday.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Cal., stroked his way into the final round of the Nautilus hotel tennis tournament today with a four-set victory over Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Cal., as officials here for the United States Lawn Tennis Association's annual meeting tomorrow looked on.

The scores were 6-3, 3-6, 6-0, 6-4.

Sabin will meet the winner of tomorrow's semi-final match between Top-Seeded Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oregon, in the final Sunday.

Seeded third, Sabin used his powerful forehand to score placement after placement against his younger opponent.

Kovacs stormed the net for frequent kills in the second set as Sabin let down a bit, but Sabin came back with a sparkling assortment of stroking in the third to dispel any doubt about his superiority.

The Oakland youth wilted completely under a barrage of passing shots.

In the final set Kovacs held his own service to 3-3 but again folded up as Sabin turned on the heat and poked the ball just beyond his reach.

In a doubles semi-final that followed the University of Miami team of George Pero and Bill Hardie battled Riggs and Sabin to a draw in two sets before play was called. The match will be completed tomorrow, when the other doubles semi-final, Martin Buxby, of Miami, and Cooke vs. Wilmer Hines, of Hollywood, Cal., and Kovacs, also will be played.

Monty Can't Change Name, Judge Rules

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—(AP)—John Montague, tales of whose unconventional golfing put him in the limelight, got into a legal sand trap today that cost him the right to use his adopted name.

The court, which thought at first that La Verne Matthew Moore could legally have the name by which he became known in Hollywood, ruled that the new name could not be allowed; at least, not until another hearing.

During proceedings last week, Superior Judge Emmet Wilson asked Montague if he owed any money or was bankrupt. Montague said "no."

Today Judge Wilson showed Montague a telegram from an eastern lawyer asking the address of La Verne Moore in connection with a $277 judgment against him in Syracuse, N. Y. He showed him a second telegram from another attorney asking about a $387 judgment and, lastly, a letter from a local attorney stating that an $823 suit was pending against Montague.

"No criminal action against you is contemplated," Judge Wilson said, "but you did make false statements last week. So I therefore revoke the order granting the change in names, you may have another hearing on the matter, however."

Branch Rickey, vice preside the club, said at St. Louis Cards had mailed Dean a cor calling for $10,000 for one s on the mound.

"Ole Diz," receiving the tract here and immediately de ing he would return it unsi insisted the $10,000 offer r sented a cut of $15,500.

NO BONUS.

"We made Dizzy a straight qualified offer of $10,000 fo services in 1938," said Ri "there are no clauses providin a bonus based on victories or thing else. It is what we tho we ought to offer him in vie circumstances."

The big pitcher—voted the jor disappointment of the sports world—said:

"I expected a cut—but not a big one. When I was winnin or more games a season for Cardinals they didn't raise my by $15,500, so why should cut me that much when I pened to have a bad se through no fault of my own.

"I think I am entitled to least $20,000 this year. Certa my salary shouldn't be trimme less than $17,500. That's posi ly the lowest they can go if expect me to pitch and I know that I will accept that. sending that contract back."

Asked to comment on De statement his pay should no less than $17,500, Rickey said

"The club is not taking an trary position. We want all players signed and all of them isfied. We believe that we reach an agreement with Dean that he will be in uniform at scheduled time, ready to give best efforts."

DIZ AGREES.

Dean, who smiled and ag with the sports writers when dubbed him 1937's star disappo ment, claimed a broken big and a sore arm caused his showing last season.

In the typical Dean manner reminded the sports world he ways is awfully good or awf bad—never just so so.

He didn't seem to be wor over the big pay cut—not a more than about his arrest o speeding charge a short time fore he received the contract. arrest cost him $10.

Tech Cagers Open Conference Play With Vanderbilt Tonight

Neil Thought It Foolish Going To Ethiopia, But Went

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—(By Mail to U. S.)—It was so many months ago. I sat with Edward J. Neil in George ...'s little restaurant, upstairs in a street just off Madison ...e near the Associated ...office.

EDDIE NEIL.

I remember we were eating asparagus omelette because George Benne's chef ...red one especially according to the directions of Eddie ...who had a recipe he had ...d up in his travels.

Eddie Neil was just back ... Ethiopia. He was thin... and his hair, prematurely ... was whiter. But he was ... with a look on his face ...didn't like. He had seen ...much of death and dying. ... was curious he had gone ...hiopia with the Italian ...s. But he had. He had ... through it all, traveling ...gh that terrible country. ...ad lived dangerously, riding trucks along the roads off which slid hundreds of trucks, ...ing their drivers and passengers to death hundreds of feet ...v. He had marched with the troops and had had fever. ...ad escaped death a dozen times. He had flown with the ...ing planes as they bombed villages and machine-gunned ...atives.

We sat there with cigars and coffee after lunch.

"How did you happen to go?" I asked. He was one of the ...n's best-known writers of sports.

AN IMPULSE TO GO

"It was strange," he said. "I have a good friend on the ... He was going. I had kidded him about it. I thought it ...foolish. I went to the ship with him and talked until it ...time to go. And then I stood there on the docks until the ...pulled away and stood out to sea. I saw her go and watched ...until she was just a little dot on the sea.

"And then," he said, "I went back to the office and ...old them I wanted to go to Ethiopia."

He went. And he did a fine job. And he came back. ...After the burning suns and the tonic of adventure in ...Ethiopia, he wanted to go back somewhere and write, ...although the idea of war was not attractive to him. But ...he wouldn't.

And then, a few days later, I had a letter from him. He ...going to Spain. And he went. The byline by Eddie Neil ...n to come in again, telling of the struggle in Spain, where ...hat is physically lovely, the yellow houses of the villages ...the fields and the people, was being destroyed. He saw all ...

And then, day before yesterday, I picked up a paper and ...where Eddie Neil had been wounded. It said, did the arti... his wound was severe. There was no hint of anything else. ...I even written the A. P. in London asking to which hospital ...would be sent from Spain. I had hoped to go see him if ...ere possible.

And then there was another day and another paper ...and a headline—"Third Journalist Dies From Wounds." ...It couldn't be Eddie Neil. And yet it was.

When things like that happen, one remembers little ...things which likely have no meaning. I was in George ...Benne's little restaurant soon after Eddie Neil had gone ...to Spain and Jack, the big bartender at the small little ...bar, who worshiped Eddie Neil, shook his head.

"I don't like it," he said, in his Irish brogue, "Eddie being ... there. I don't like it."

AN EDITORIAL.

There was an editorial in the London Dispatch of Sunday, ... after the two journalists were killed and Neil wounded. I ...k you will like it. It was short but very fine. It was called ...Job of Work"—and it read:

"A shell made a direct hit on a motor car in the ...Teruel front. Four men were wounded, two fatally.

"They were journalists.

"Unarmed in war zones, they follow the news. It ...can grimly be said that sometimes, as in this case, they ...overtake it.

"There is a bravery that wears no uniform, and is ...only realized when it falls to the peril accepted as part ...of a job of work."

Very often things happen which make one proud of being ...ewspaperman. I liked that part of the story where these ..., carrying no guns, ran forward with other shells falling to ... aid to the men in the stricken car and helped bring them ...

"... Part of a job of work."

Eddie Neil never did a slack job. And when his number ...e up it was typical it should come up with him at the front ...s.

A GREAT REPORTER.

The man was a great reporter of sports and of news. I have ... with him at many ringsides. I recall some of them—the ...tering night the leering Max Baer knocked out Max Schmel...

"Baer could start from tonight and go on to become a great ...ter—but he won't," said Neil.

I recall especially the night when Jim Braddock took ...the title from Max Baer. We drove, with George Benne ...at the wheel of his car, to the hotel where Braddock ...was. And Joey Gould, his manager, was there and the ...place was jammed with newspapermen taking pictures ...of Braddock.

Only Eddie Neil had picked Braddock to win.

And that night he took Joey Gould by the arm out in a ...lway and said:

"Listen, don't you send Jim in against a fellow like ...this Schmeling or this young Louis until he has made ...some money. They have the style to beat him."

A lot of memories come crowding back.

I think that the war correspondents of today, in their news...per stories and more especially in their books, have done ...re to tell the real story of war—the real story of the dying ...d the dirt and the horror and the machinations behind it—...n any writers that have ever lived. Their books—"I Found ... Peace," "Personal History," "Way of a Transgressor," "I ...rite as I Please," "A Journalist's Wife"—they, and others, ...ve done an honest job. There was no Richard Harding Davis ... it. It was an honest job of work such as Eddie Neil died ...ing.

Jones, Jordan, Johnston, Sims and Anderson Tech Starters.

By JACK TROY.

Shooting for a victory in the opening conference game of the season, the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets tonight meet the Vanderbilt Commodores at 8 o'clock in the "exclusive" naval armory.

Of necessity, the doors, for the first time, will be closed to outsiders. Only students will be privileged to see the hardwood hostilities.

This is because there are only enough seats for the students and they pay for the privilege of seeing all athletic contests when they enroll at the Yellow Jacket institution.

Enthusiastic basketball fans should not feel bad about the situation when they consider that not even graduates of Tech can be admitted.

WISH TO ACT.

Admittedly an undesirable situation, Tech authorities wish there was something they could do about it. But nothing can be done until authorities in Washington authorize completion of Tech's new gymnasium. The gym is hardly likely to be ready for this season.

Given a last half "scare" by North Carolina State, the Yellow Jackets, who should be strong contenders for conference honors this season, probably will go after Vandy from the outset and keep after the Commodores until the finish.

A tendency to coast in the second half against State almost cost a ball game. A big lead was wiped away, just like that, and with only five minutes left to play it was a bitter battle.

Coach Roy Mundorff is expected to start the same combination tonight, including Bill Jordan and Ed Jones, forwards; Bo Johnston, center, and Fletcher Sims and Junior Anderson, guards.

LEADS SCORING.

Jones led the scoring against State with 13 points. Johnston, a high-scoring center, had the misfortune to go out on personal fouls in the last seven minutes of play.

Vanderbilt already has played five games, winning three and losing two. Captain Ed Hunter is out of action temporarily with a sprained ankle.

Coach Jim Buford is expected to start a lineup of Rymer and Ireland, forwards; Hanna, center, and Manning and Little, guards.

The Jackets are favored to open conference competition with a victory.

Brown Kayoes Eddie Polo In First

By THAD HOLT.

A minute and 15 seconds after the opening gong, 20-year-old Ben Brown, a job-well-done look on his boyish face, stood looking down at the near-lifeless body of Eddie Polo last night at the Warren arena. Atlanta's middleweight title contender, who is lauded in Grantland Rice's Sportlight in this morning's Constitution, had won his eighth straight knockout.

According to Polo's father, brother and manager, who witnessed one of the quickest knockouts ever recorded in an Atlanta ring, it was the first time Polo had taken the count in 150 matches against good and bad opposition. They came from New York, a far piece to be beaten down so quickly and so savagely.

LOOKED GOOD.

As they came out for that first and last round, Polo, a well-conditioned battler of 170 pounds (four more than Brown) brought admiration from the crowd of 2,000 with his fine form and aggressiveness. "Here is a guy who will make Ben step," more than one fan was heard to murmur.

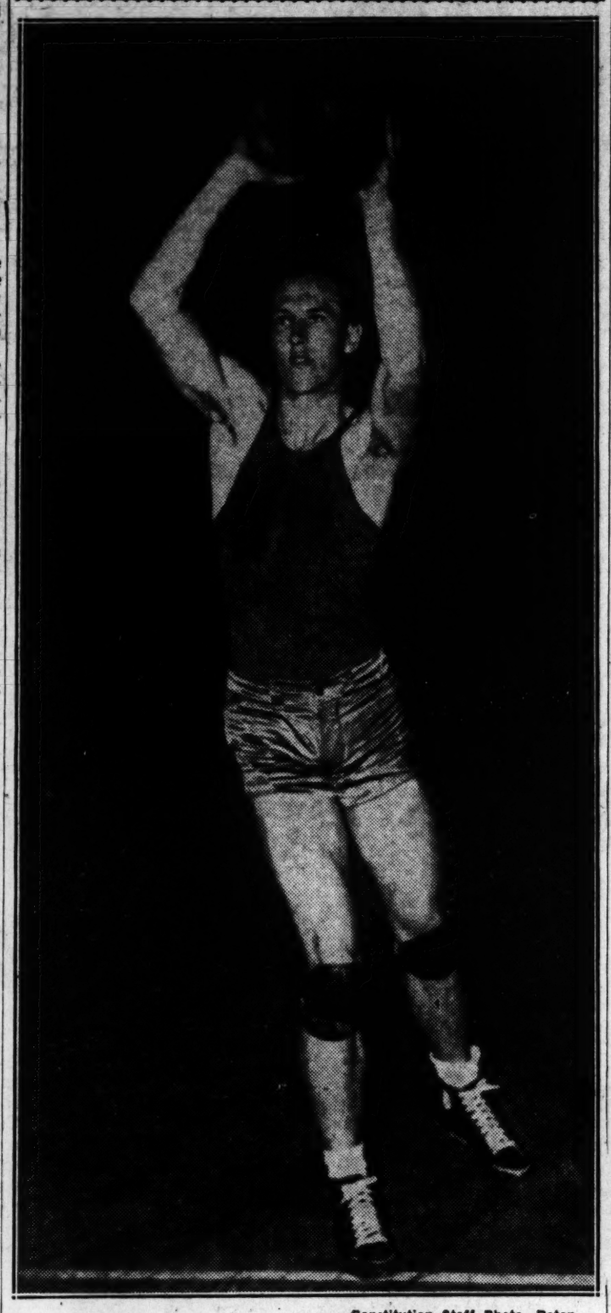
Polo came rushing in briskly. He danced around Ben, landed a couple of light lefts to the head. Ben had been told by Sam Sobel, his manager, that it would be unwise to take any chances. "Get him early," mumbled Sam. "He is a dangerous swinger."

GETS GUARD DOWN.

Blasting Ben maneuvered the Italian into a corner and flicked a left to the body, bringing Polo's guard down. Then like a flash he crossed a crashing right flush on Polo's jaw. He crumbled, face forward, his eyes glassy and expressionless. But somehow, he got to his feet at the count of nine. The Atlanta star was on his stricken foe. Ben spun him around for the kill and finished him with a crushing right. It was not easy to revive Polo, who said afterwards that he never knew what hit him and that he had not believed there was a middleweight in the country who could lay him out as did Blasting Ben.

The headliner was the only knockout of a rousing and bloody show offered by colorful Jim Downing. There was fierce action all the way. Frankie Allen outpointed Chester Conklin in the eight-round semi-final. Ray Swanson, Atlanta heavyweight, outmauled the veteran Eddie O'Dea, of Baltimore. Clint Moran, Manchester, Ga., heavyweight, drew with Jack Burke, St. Louis. Carl East and Gene Black battled to a six-round draw.

After the Commodores Again



Constitution Staff Photo—Roton.

Bill Jordan, Tech's great All-Conference end, who was a big factor in the Jackets' 14-0 gridiron victory over Vanderbilt last fall, will be in there at forward tonight seeking to stop the Commodore hoopsters. Jordan played an outstanding game last week against N. C. State in the Yellow Jackets' cage opener.

CHAMPIONS AND THEIR CHANCES IN 1938.

Lewis and Steele.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—The light-heavyweight division, dominated at one time and another by great fighters, has none now. The flair is for heavyweights, and hopeful 175-pounders are trying to put on a few more pounds as they aim at the title held by Joe Louis.

Meanwhile, John Henry Lewis, the negro light-heavyweight boss, seems secure in his post for another year—if he, too, doesn't pass up the division to fight as a heavyweight regularly, as he does occasionally now. He probably would forsake the championship he holds and build himself up for a fight with Louis—if he could get the fight. But Louis is not eager to fight him for a number of reasons—one being that the heavyweight champion doesn't think the fight would draw. So John Henry sticks to the lighter class and does the best he can.

Lewis isn't a great fighter, as some of his predecessors were, but he is a very good one. He is what is known in the trade as a good journeyman fighter. He knows how to fight and keep busy, fighting around the country, usually in over-the-weight matches, and making a good living without drawing down many big purses.

The contenders in his class are shop-worn, for the most part. Al Gainer and Tiger Jack Fox, also negroes, are rated close to him. Both are veterans, both are fair fighters. But neither is going to be and better than he is today and neither is as good as Lewis. Behind them is a group of assorted veterans and youngsters, but none of them shows promise of taking the title from Lewis. Not this year, anyway.

The Middleweight.

Freddy Steele, as a result of the beating he took from Fred Apostoli a week ago, clings precariously to the middleweight championship. This was the first major pugilistic upset of the year, this stopping of Steele by the San Francisco Italian. Steele had appeared to be the best middleweight to come swinging down the lane in a long time, and his title looked safe—for a while, anyway. But Apostoli nailed him early in their over-the-weight battle, beat him badly, and took everything from him but his title.

A natural, of course, would be a return match between this pair outdoors this summer. Apostoli is eager for it and so is the crowd, since Steele has lost his prestige and the crowd wants to see him either reclaim it—or Apostoli established on the middleweight peak, where he would be today if he hadn't been forced to weigh in above the limit to get the match. Steele, however, said before the fight that he never would give Apostoli a crack at the title and maybe he never will. But he said that at a time when he thought he could dispose of Apostoli in rather short order, and now pride, if nothing else, may drive him back into the ring with his conqueror.

Nor would victory for Apostoli in another fight be a foregone conclusion. Many who saw the fight last week apparently are of the opinion that the champion wasn't at his best—that he held Apostoli too lightly because he had stopped him once in 10 rounds. Whether they are right or not, Steele would have a lot of support in another fight—and this, aside from the Louis-Schmeling tangle, would come pretty close to being the fight of the year.

A Young Man Rising.

It is possible, however, that both Steele and Lewis will be called upon within the year to tie up with a youngster whose name at present is pretty well down on the list of middleweight contenders—for this young man is growing, and sometimes, when a fighter with as much stuff as he seems to have starts to move, he moves fast.

The young man is Ben Brown, of Atlanta. He has been boxing less than two years and most of the men he has beaten do not amount to much, but the wiser heads in the fight game have spotted him as a comer and wouldn't be surprised to see him fighting for the heavyweight championship within the next two years or so. Meanwhile, he is heading for the top of the middleweight division—and just ahead lie the light-heavyweights.

Brown is not yet 21. He is an Irish-American, was born in Atlanta and has done most of his fighting in the south, although lately he has moved up into the middle west for a few shots. And Mike Jacobs is planning to show him in New York in the near future. He is a pretty good boxer and a good puncher. He is strong, ambitious and likes to fight. Remember the name. You may be hearing a lot about Ben Brown before long.

BULLDOGS BEAT 'GATORS, 34 TO 31, IN FIRST CONTEST

McCaskill Leads Attack With Nine Points; Farren Stars.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Georgia's close-guarding Bulldogs proved a little too tough for the fast-improving University of Florida basketball team here tonight, winning a 34-to-31 decision in the first of a two-game series. A crowd of 1,800 packed the Florida gym.

The Southeastern conference rivals meet again tomorrow night.

In addition to leading the Florida offense Moon played fine ball on the defense and was a thorn in the side of Georgia forwards all night.

Captain Farren, giant Georgia center, was the star performer for his team, playing a great floor game, and continually harassing the 'Gator defense with perfect passes to his fast-breaking mates.

Laval Will Scout For Major Team

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14. (AP)—W. L. (Billy) Laval, whose resignation as athletic director at Emory and Henry College at Emory, Va., was announced last night said from his home in Greenville, S. C., today he would scout for a major league baseball club beginning March 1.

"I haven't considered a coaching position, but may be interested," Laval said.

Dr. J. N. Hillman, president of Emory and Henry, made public Laval's resignation, effective January 15.

Laval formerly coached at the University of South Carolina.

PATRICK ISSUES PRACTICE CALL

Coach John Patrick has issued his first call of the new year for his spring football practice. He served notice on the 45 men who will be eligible for the varsity next year to report to practice Monday.

Patrick was optimistic when he called the men into a short meeting yesterday, for with the return of the nucleus of last year and the addition of some new men, he seems to think that a long drill on fundamentals will get the boys in excellent shape to go to work in the fall with only two and a half weeks' drill to precede the first game.

Patrick is negotiating with some major southern university to procure an opening game here in Atlanta on September 8.

This is not as yet definite, but it is sure he plans to brings one of three schools into Atlanta at that early date.

Rumored around the Buckhead school is the possibilities of L. S. U., Rice or Chicago to be the school, and it is entirely possible that Georgia might be the team.

Lucky Joanna. Always in demand for the nicest parties—by the nicest people. What's so right about Joanna—and what's so wrong about the just-as-pretty girl who has too few of these pleasures?

So often speech is the villain. The worst about blunders in English is that the blunderer is the last to know about them.

A girl can go around for years offending cultured ears with complected for complexioned—party for person. She never hears the errors because she's used to them.

So stand off and listen to yourself as a stranger—a man of culture and background—would listen to you.

Would you annoy this stranger by saying, "We're so enthused about the bazar, we come early so we wouldn't miss nothing?" Or would you give a different, a charming impression with "We're so enthusiastic about the bazar, we came early so we wouldn't miss anything."

Do you discover you say "the help" for "the servant," "that there house" when it should be "that house," no "there."

With our 40-page booklet, Common Errors in English, you can quickly discover dozens of blunders you don't know you make. Easy to correct them, develop the cultured speech which charms.

Send 15c for our booklet COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—This week is almost breathless from the point of view of the social whirl. We had luncheon for a large group of ladies yesterday. They came from the diplomatic group and our own official group.

I was happy to have at this luncheon Miss Helen Stansbury, who is doing influential work for one of the air lines. She is talking to women all over the country, explaining to them what travel by air means in time saving and comfort.

I think it is well to realize that, as the years go on, we are being given a constantly increasing variety of ways in which we may do things, so we have a choice and may fit whatever we do to our personal needs and the circumstances of the moment. There are often times when I would rather travel by train; there are many times when nothing gives more pleasure than to step into a car and drive off. There are other times when I can think of no way in which to go where I want except by air.

There are many times when I would rather sit at home and listen to the radio. There are times when I want to be in the great hall and actually see the orchestra playing, or hear the speech being made. It is all a question of meeting our needs and desires in new ways.

Yesterday afternoon, a very distinguished group of ladies gave their time to come to the White House and join with me at a meeting for the benefit of the "fight infantile paralysis" drive which is to be started on the 17th. I hope the largest sum of money will come from people who, year after year, pay their dollar and feel they are contributing to the alleviation of suffering brought on by this scourge.

After this group left me, the National Council of the National Federation of Women's Clubs spent from 5 to 6 o'clock at tea with me and we had an opportunity to talk on various subjects. I always feel a great satisfaction in welcoming these women who come from different parts of the country and who represent influential groups of thinking women in their own communities.

We were alone for dinner and it was short, for I had to be at George Washington University at 8:15 to speak at a forum which the freshman class has inaugurated. I was particularly interested in the questions which followed my speech. They brought me to the conclusion that all of us should devote ourselves to formulating our ideas in the most concise form possible. The young people had many ideas but often had difficulty in expressing them concisely enough so that the chairman could repeat them for my benefit and the audience's.

I had a ride this morning, the first in nearly a week, and it was a joy to be out. A few of the cabinet ladies lunched with me and in a short time my afternoon appointments will begin.

The Cabinet Wives

With the opening of Congress and the Washington social season, the activities and personalities of the wives of members of President Roosevelt's cabinet take on special interest. The part played by these women in the advancement of their husbands' careers and in the leadership of Capital society is told here in a series of eight articles, of which this is the seventh.

SHOPPERS' AID TO FARMERS PROPOSED BY MRS. WALLACE

By PAULINE FREDERICK.
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—There is a way by which the American housewife can do her bit in helping Uncle Sam keep the nation's granary normal.

It was suggested by Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the secretary of Agriculture, the other afternoon as she sat in the living room of her hotel suite overlooking Rock Creek park, talking in her quiet, unaffected way about the things that interest her most.

Mrs. Wallace herself had opened the door, for she had suggested that her maid take the afternoon to see the rural arts exhibit at the Department of Agriculture. As she led the way down the long, attractive room to a graceful settee, you were aware of a pretty face and shining eyes lighted by a warm smile, once brown hair now graying and waved softly close to her head, a becoming dress of rough crepe, gray with a cast of mauve, a satin panel down the front and a silver chain about her neck suspending a pendant of jade and silver similar to the buckle at her belt.

This was the woman who, in her modest way, was to suggest the method by which she believed the housewives of America, the biggest buyers of the farmers' crops, could really help to solve the crises of the lean and fat years that beset American agriculture. Almost from the beginning, the conversation had turned to this major problem of the nation today.

"I should think," said Mrs. Wallace, "that the housewife might try to buy a little more of the products that are abundant and lower in price and less of the higher-priced and scarcer products."

She proposed as an aid for those who were willing to follow the plan, the Consumers' Guide, published bi-weekly by the Consumers' Counsel division of the AAA.

It was evident from the first that this cabinet hostess, who has lived with farm problems for many years, was not pleading the cause of the farmer solely for his own benefit. She had taken care early to emphasize how the welfare of the rural dweller and the welfare of the city dweller seem to be vitally linked in the national economy. Thus, Mrs. Wallace sees in the Department of Agriculture an agency that does more than help just those who live by tilling the soil. Pressed for a cabinet wife's view of how her husband's department fits into the scheme of government and everyday life, she had a ready reply.

"The Department of Agriculture," she said, "is trying to better the standard of living for the farmer, but in such a way as to benefit all classes.

"Already, many of its activities, like home economics research, pure food, drug and meat inspection, are directly benefiting the city public as well as those who live in rural areas."

But this is not all to say that Mrs. Wallace is ready and eager to discuss agriculture and its problems at the first clack of the door-knocker. Quite the contrary. Close to her heart as lies this interest, she is usually very reticent in discussing it.

Today, the Iowa woman who met and married Henry Wallace in Des Moines in 1914, is interested chiefly in creating a home to which a weary Secretary of Agriculture may come of an evening and find an atmosphere "as free of care as possible."

MRS. HENRY A. WALLACE.

The romance that started back in Iowa began when pretty Miss Ilo Browne was studying voice and taking work at Drake University, and serious-minded Henry Wallace was a cub reporter on "Wallace's Farmer." Following their marriage, and the elder Wallace's elevation to the Harding cabinet, the present Secretary of Agriculture became editor of the "Farmer."

When the fourth in the line of Henry Wallaces was born, he was given his mother's maiden name for a middle name so as to distinguish him from the other three. Today, the brown-haired, brown-eyed youth who gazes at you so seriously from his picture over the radio is a junior at Iowa State, studying agriculture.

Robert, who stands taller than his father, is also at Iowa State. But his bent appears to be toward a career in science.

Even as Mrs. Wallace was telling something of her family, Jean, the only daughter, tall and brown-eyed and wind-blown, enthusiastically arrived from the Cathedral school. Jean's "career" at present seems to center around riding and dogs.

If she had it in her power to direct completely her children's careers, Mrs. Wallace was asked, what would she choose for them?

"I would like my sons to follow in their father's footsteps," she said, with becoming pride. "I would want Jean to be prepared to earn her own living, not that she might necessarily have to do it, but I would want her to be able to. I think people are so much happier when they have some really definite work they enjoy."

And so to topics like the Washington whirl into which she has been drawn from what must have been a less hectic existence in an editor's home in Des Moines. What does she feel about it all? Mother, wife and hostess answered with words of appreciation and satisfaction for the role she has been called upon to play. If there was a tinge of regret that so much private life must be sacrificed to public exigency, it did not know.

"Of course, this existence is very different," she admitted. "It is much more complicated. But there are such compensations as widening one's circle of friends."

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

LITTLE LESSONS IN PHYSIOLOGY

5. Evacuation Is Not Elimination.

More than a hundred years ago Bennett, an Edinburgh investigator, showed that calomel does not increase the function or action of the liver, does not increase the secretion or excretion of bile. Many others have since confirmed the observation. But many laymen and probably some physicians still imagine calomel somehow has such effects—otherwise there could be no reason for using calomel as a purgative.

Numerous purgatives are hydrogogue irritants, that is, they cause the mucous membrane lining the alimentary tract to weep, discharge water, just as strong salt water causes watering of the eye or nose. All purgatives or laxatives are more or less irritating, not only to the lining of stomach and intestine, but to the kidneys too. Many so-called "purely vegetable" or "herb" laxatives cause congestion and irritation of the pelvic organs of men and women and are contributing factors in many cases of hemorrhoids and of peculiar pelvic disorders in men and women.

An ingredient in innumerable tablets, teas, powders and pills purporting to be good for stomach and liver trouble and to "regulate" the bowels, is aloes or its active principle aloin. Aloes was originally used as horse medicine. Sollman proved many years ago that aloes or aloin causes tubular nephritis, acute Bright's disease, when administered hypodermically. No doubt it is a common contributing cause of chronic nephritis, in persons who use it frequently as a laxative.

Quacks and wiseacre laymen commonly confuse evacuation or defecation with elimination. Elimination or excretion of waste matter or possibly poisonous substances into the bowl occurs to a limited extent, but it has no relation whatever to evacuation or defecation. No matter how drastic the physic or how frequently it is taken, it has no effect on excretion or elimination.

The colon has been termed the "human garbage box" or "sewer." Very well. Don't be silly about it. After you have thrown waste matter into the garbage receptacle or after you have poured poison down the drain or sewer, you don't worry about it any more, unless the garbage receptacle is damaged or the sewer becomes obstructed.

Even the venerable Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, whose teachings about "ailmentary toxemia or intestinal autointoxication" have influenced the thought of many laymen as well as physicians, accorded at least a Pickwickian recognition to the fact that some persons with constipation do not have any symptoms of toxemia (autointoxication). "When the intestinal mucous membrane is intact," he wrote, "it is able to exclude most of the intestinal poisons, acting like a filter, which permits only the useful substances to enter the blood." He acknowledged also the power of the liver and that of the thyroid gland to destroy, oxidize or render innocuous substances of a toxic nature which might get into the blood. But the Sage of Battle Creek still held his followers to their three-a-day tenet by promulgating the volivesque doctrine that "the fact that the symptoms of toxemia do not occur in every case is no evidence that they are not present." That just about made it unanimous.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

"SCREEN TALENT HARD TO FIND," SAYS MARY GARDEN.

What do the talent scouts of the great film companies want? Put to Mary Garden, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most illustrious scout, that question elicited the prompt rely; "Almost the impossible! I am looking for the girl with the beautiful voice, beautiful hair, eyes and teeth and a beautiful figure. She should be about five feet four inches tall and weigh not more than 115 pounds, preferably 110. Perhaps she should also be blonde, as blondes screen better, but that is not so important."

There you have a pretty idea of the girl Mary Garden will look for when she goes on a tour of the principal cities of this country in February. Revisiting the scenes of her own triumphs as a great singer, Miss Garden will seek some young, gifted girl who measures up to her conception of "almost the impossible." If found, the girl will be given a screen test and, if she passes it, she will ultimately have a chance at one of those over-plump $2,000 to $3,000 a week film contracts.

But not without work! Miss Garden assures me that "No career demands so much as that of the singer. It is work, work, work! The young singer must undergo the most rigorous training, practice the most rigorous self-denial, if she is to become great. While she is a student, it is all work and no fun!"

She's the type the talent scouts are looking for.

For the student, there are no late hours, no parties and certainly no cocktail parties for "cocktails are death to the voice and the attractive appearance." Training is all-important. It is not enough to be able to sing an aria. The fledglings Miss Garden approves will know their opera and will probably have concentrated on some one school.

"It is very valuable to know the language of the operatic school that is favored," Miss Garden explained. "Instead of dabbling in a little of the French, a little German and a little Italian, it is better to know one school thoroughly and to know that language."

I asked Miss Garden whether she would be interested in other kinds of talent and the answer was "Yes."

"If I were to find some young dancer with film possibilities," she asserted, "I would certainly want my company to know about her. I would do what I could to arrange an audition. But I am principally interested in the girl with the beautiful voice."

In the two years she has been with M.-G.-M., Miss Garden has interviewed about 1,500 aspirants for the screen. Of this number, four were taken by the company and are now studying in Paris preparatory to their film debuts.

Miss Garden today is a dynamic and interesting personality, whose advice to the young, ambitious singer should be worth a great deal, since she has practiced all that she preaches. She is five feet four inches tall and never allowed her weight to exceed 125 pounds. She is careful about her diet, seldom taking more than one hearty meal a day and never overeating. She likes to swim and, frankly, hates to walk! She likes to ride horseback. Most people, she is sure, are overweight from a lack of exercise, and "when you get lazy your energy goes." She certainly is not lacking in energy. I think she will find the girl with almost the impossible."

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN.

ON A SIDE STREET.

Marcia and a patient painter mixed a lovely tone.

"I really am a hot-house plant at heart," said Marcia, "but here I am in a small house on a side street with three children and a million things to do. I want my home to be lovely and gracious but it's so small!"

Hers is a complaint many a lady might make but many of us consider it a confession of weakness to state that we long for the little elegant touches in life. Marcia not only longed for them, she talked about them, and finally achieved a few, albeit her house did not grow nor her purse shrink too much.

There's her newly decorated dining room, for example. No svelte lady-about-town could have a lovelier setting for her meals, and her family has reacted to her touches of grandeur by brushing up on their table manners generally. Hers was a small room with two windows together at one end and a single side window. Her furniture was fairly nice 18th century mahogany in the smaller scale edition that has become popular with so many small home-owners. The walls were rather uninteresting buff, the draperies a nondescript green and the rug was a hand-me-down domestic from the living room.

Patient Painter.

Marcia started with a heart-to-heart talk with her painter. Three walls of the room were painted a soft, dusty green, a color mixed to perfection by the patient painter. The wall surrounding the two windows was papered in a lovely deeper green shade in a design of beigey bamboo stripes in a lattice pattern. To give the windows dignity she made full hanging draperies of the same beige of the bamboo and hung them full from the ceiling to the floor, thus adding a sense of spaciousness to the room. Woodwork was painted the beige of the curtains and paper, and the other window was treated with verve by adding a bamboo lattice screen over the entire pane surface (this was made by an enterprising young son hard at work in manual training.)

By adding a deep beige room-sized carpet to the floor (which she claims is her only real extravagance in the room) she has achieved a minor triumph in elegance. Her silver and a few audacious Chinese porcelains add real charm to the room.

And she claims she can feel like a great lady even on Monday nights when there is only hash for supper!

Indulge Yen for Fancy Dishes

By RUTH CHAMBERS

If you have a yen to go a bit "arty" in food preparation and to try out some of those very grand looking dishes which appear on the food pages of magazines and newspapers, a luncheon party offers you a good opportunity to try your skill. The very word luncheon seems to permit a wider latitude and a more frivolous approach to the subject than a dinner party allows you. Probably your guests will be women, and a menu which will impress them may be quite different from the heartier fare which you would serve to men guests.

However, don't forget that ladies like to eat, too, as well as to look at pretty dishes, and while you are planning decorative effects in food harmony, see that you serve your guests a satisfying meal.

Choose Meat Course Carefully.

In planning your menu for a luncheon party, do not depart from that convenient method of building the meal about the meat course. That course may be as dainty as you please—a meat salad, or a creamed delicacy such as sweetbreads in patty shells—but your luncheon will be most satisfactory if this part is well chosen.

For awhile the influence of the Hollywood diet, with its emphasis on lamb chops and pineapple made this combination very popular. Well, lamb chops are still very "good eating" whenever they appear and you might follow the custom and serve them. There are many good ways of serving them, too. For instance, you might spread parsley butter, made by mixing one tablespoon of chopped parsley with 1-4 cup butter and 2 tablespoons lemon juice over the chops. Timbales filled with minted green peas is a pretty accompaniment with a "different" flavor.

And, to be original, you might serve veal cutlets with pineapple.

Here are other suggestions for that important main dish of your luncheon:

Veal Supreme.

2 pounds veal shoulder, diced
2 tablespoons lard
1 clove garlic
1-2 cup water
1-2 pound noodles
1-4 pound almonds
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon poppy seeds

Brown veal in hot lard with garlic. Remove garlic clove. Add water, cover and simmer until tender, 30 to 45 minutes. Cook noodles in boiling salted water for 20 minutes. Drain. Blanch the almonds, slice lengthwise into thin strips. Brown in butter and add to the noodles. Mix thoroughly and arrange in a ring on a large platter. Fill the center with the cooked veal mixture, your liquid from the veal over the noodles and sprinkle with poppy seeds.

Pork Salad.

3 cups diced cold roast pork
1 1-2 cups diced celery
2 tablespoons minced pimiento or green pepper
1-2 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons salad oil
Paprika
Mayonnaise
Lettuce
Sweet gherkins
Salt

Cut cold cooked lean pork into dice. Add celery, pimiento or green pepper and finely grated lemon rind and marinate for half an hour with oil, lemon juice, salt and 1-8 teaspoon paprika beaten together to a French dressing. Chill, drain off excess dressing, add mayonnaise and blend thoroughly. Serve on lettuce, either plain or shredded, put additional mayonnaise on top and sprinkle with paprika. Garnish with celery tips and small sweet gherkins.

Veal Cutlets Hawaiian.

6 veal cutlets, 1-2 inch thick
6 slices pineapple
1 cup bread crumbs
1 egg
1 tablespoon milk
Fat
Salt and pepper

Cut a lengthwise slit or pocket in each cutlet and insert a slice of pineapple. Dip cutlets in egg beaten in milk, then in bread crumbs. Fry very slowly until tender, about 30 minutes. Serve with additional slices of pineapple browned in butter.

Sweetbread and Mushroom Patties

1 pair sweetbreads
6 large mushrooms
1 cup rich white sauce
3 tablespoons butter
1 egg
Paprika
Salt and pepper

Parboil sweetbreads in acidulated water and blanch by plunging into cold water. Cut mushrooms in small pieces and brown in butter. Pour rich white sauce over mushrooms, add sweetbreads and season with salt and pepper and paprika. Simmer over hot water 10 minutes. Remove from fire, fold in beaten egg yolk and a few drops of lemon juice. Serve in patty shells.

Boneless Beef Rolls.

2 pounds round steak
6 small carrots
1 cup bread crumbs, sifted
1 egg
1 tablespoon milk
3 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper

Have round steak cut thin in pieces suitable for individual servings. Season with salt and pepper. Place a carrot in each piece and roll. Fasten each roll securely with string or toothpicks. Roll in egg beaten with milk and fine bread crumbs. Brown in butter. When nicely browned, add one cup water and simmer until rolls are done, about one hour. Thicken liquid for gravy. Serve with baked potatoes which have had the centers taken out, mashed and replaced. Decorate with paprika.

FRIENDLY COUN

A young school teacher as a discussion of the influenc unhappy home conditions ha a child's school work. Say "I believe many fathers and ers are unaware that their tionship to one another, home, largely determines sort of pupils their childre be in the school."

Most of us grownups u estimate a child's comprehe of what goes on around him don't realize that a little o as sensitive to the undercur in his home as a seismogra the earth's tremors. Yet it's Long before the little mind set out the facts and re about them, his emotions sending him telegraphic sages, assuring him that a well in his world which is up by parents, or warning that all is not well.

A school principal of lon perience tells me there are home conditions that tend t stroy a child's efficiency at s to make it difficult for him on with his books and his mates. Here they are: a lo marriage where there is only courtesy between the paren loveless marriage where the eternal friction and fighting tween the parents; a home which the father is a drun and an irresponsible perso poverty stricken home where isn't enough money for the d cies of life. She maintains th each of these instances the an abnormal family life which it is unlikely that no children can come.

And why not? We have seen children suffering a pain when things were not r between their fathers and m ers. We have heard them li protect their parents. We h seen them hide their heads shame at family disagreeme Right there may be the beginn of the child's sensitiveness; he sees his playmates in t homes where life is normal happy. That comparison him to the quick. Right th may be the germ of his sens inferiority which makes withdraw from close associa with other children and cr in his shell, trying to hide sorrow from those who are ter off.

His pitiful little pretenses deceptions make him furtive fearful. He has been robbe the best thing in childhood— right to be natural and free. little mind is divided between thoughts and the bright fron wishes to put up. His emoti life is stunted before he's started. Doesn't it stand to son that he can't concentrate his lessons nor join the other dren in play? And then his ents talk of punishing him for grades on his lessons and wo why he can't get on with his p mates. For shame!

Let a child grow up in a ho where father and mother l one another, a home wh there's mutual respect, wh courtesy and kindness are pr ticed consistently and he follo the pattern that's set for h Let his parents pull together, up an undivided front to h and he falls in line to pull w them. Let him have a taste wise discipline while he's a t tot (which he can't get fr rowing parents), learning th he can't march through breaking rules without payi the penalty, and he will have sense of responsibility to family, his teachers, his pla mates and his books. He fa in line at school as he fell in li at home. Having been "hous broke" in a regular family wh young, falling in line seems to a perfectly natural and norm thing to do.

It must give a thoughtful p of parents the heebie-geebies hear a real child hygienist t on this subject. Recently I he one lecture and when he had f ished, I marveled that as ma children turn out well as do, s ing as how the expert lays s stress on the relationship betwe a father and mother and the mosphere of their home.

DR. HERTY HONORED AT MILL DEDICATION

First Unit of $9,000,000 Plant at Fernandina Is Opened.

FERNANDINA, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Business and political leaders predicted a new era of progress for the south through development of the papermaking industry at ceremonies here today dedicating the first unit of a $9,000,000 paper mill.

Dr. Charles H. Herty, Savannah chemist, whose research work is credited with determining the suitability of southern pine for papermaking, was the honor guest. The day was officially proclaimed as "Florida industries day" by Governor Fred P. Cone.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said the southern kraft paper industry had shown "phenomenal development" since 1935 and urged that leaders "look beyond the vast social and economic effect on the region and the nation."

Balanced Economy.

"It means the absorption of labor, increased transportation demands, large-scale construction and other widespread advantages to be shared by various units of society. It looks to a balanced economy in the south."

James G. Stahlman, Nashville, Tenn., publisher and president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, said application of Dr. Herty's research work would result in the south experiencing "an industrial, economic and social rehabilitation such as it has never before known."

Asserting the rehabilitation would take place within the "next 10 or 15 years," Stahlman predicted "that within this short period we will see kraft, newsprint, rayon, cellophane and collateral industries using southern pine, with an annual turnover of not less than $1,000,000,000."

Other Speakers.

Governor Cone and Senator Claude Pepper were among other speakers who joined in paying tribute to Dr. Herty.

"The possibilities of this industry are practically unlimited," the Governor said. "And it is just the beginning of a great many other industries that are bound to locate in our section of the country."

Pepper termed the research chemist "a genius of Georgia, who, devoted to the south, has converted waste territory, in many respects, into fertile lands."

Plaque for Herty.

Dr. Herty, who saw a plaque honoring him unveiled during the ceremonies, pledged his continued efforts toward making the south "the paper manufacturing center of the world."

"I assure you," he told his listeners, "that if means of continuing my laboratory are provided, I will continue to work on this problem in an effort to make the south the paper center of the world."

Dr. Herty said he had found in southern pine trees all of the properties needed for the manufacture of better grades of paper. He said Kraft paper manufacture was but "the curtain raiser," and asserted the real future of the southern industry lay in newsprint making.

EX-CONGRESSMAN DIES.

SEARCY, Ark., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A brief illness ended today the life of Stephen Brundidge, 81, one-time congressman and author of Arkansas' initiated primary election law.

Seeks Commission Post

I. GLOER HAILEY.

HAILEY ANNOUNCES FOR FULTON POST

H. J. Foster Becomes Third Candidate in Sheriff Election.

I. Gloer Hailey, sixth ward alderman and former mayor pro tem., yesterday became a candidate for the Fulton county commission to oppose Dr. C. R. Adams, incumbent, in the March 2 primary. He became the second commission candidate to qualify by payment of the $500 entrance fee.

Later in the day H. J. Foster, local candy salesman, became the third to enter the special election March 2 to fill the post of Fulton sheriff. J. D. Bazemore and J. C. Aldredge had qualified previously.

Hailey's Statement.

In making his announcement, Alderman Hailey said:

"In announcing my candidacy for a place on the Fulton County Commission, I do so realizing that the people want a public servant and not a public boss. These positions of trust belong to the people of Fulton county and not to the individual occupying said position as some would lead you to believe by their conduct in office—once every four years the taxpayer and voter demands an accounting of their servant's stewardship, and if a review of his public service reveals that he has put self above the common interests of his boss, the taxpayer, then he is and should be removed at the insistence of numerous citizens who have reviewed the record of the incumbent for the past three years.

"I am qualifying and announcing my candidacy for this place to be filled in the March 2 primary. I am serving my second term as alderman of the sixth ward of the city of Atlanta, having been mayor pro tem. last year and from my experience on all the important committees for years, as well as being a graduate in law and 17 years as a businessman, I feel that I am ably qualified to crry out the wishes of the people in a businesslike, efficient and honest administration.

"I promise when elected to be a faithful, sincere and conscientious servant, always putting the public mandate ahead of personal opinion and not to use the office for personal gain or sectional benefit, but will consider the trust as sacred and so conduct myself in office. I invite a comparison of my record with that of the incumbent and am confident that such comparison will result in the people selecting me to serve them for the next four years as one of their county commissioners.

"I earnestly beseech every man and woman in Fulton county to go to the polls on March 2 and not let this early primary be the farce it has been in the past, but express the majority sentiment of Fulton county in the selection made instead of permitting a small minority with selfish interests to prevail."

Foster Drafts Plans.

Foster, who lives at 1799 Langston street, S. W., and has lived in Atlanta more than 20 years, said he would make a statement later.

"I have not completed selection of my deputies or drafting of my platform," he said. "I don't want to go into this election too fast, and I won't have any statement to make until I've gone into the matter thoroughly."

Deadline for primary candidates for three commission posts and three municipal judgeships to qualify is January 31, while the last day for sheriff entries is February 14.

...FCC CENSURES NBC ON MAE WEST SKIT

Bureau Will Remember When Licenses Expire.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today sharply criticized the National Broadcasting Company and 59 stations which broadcast the Mae West-Don Ameche "Adam and Eve" feature on the night of December 12.

The commission said that in view of National Broadcasting Company's "recognition of the objectionable character of the program, and its assurance that greater care and caution will be exercised in the future," there would be no action at this time other than the writing of a letter of condemnation.

The commission said, however, that upon application for renewal of the licenses of the stations carrying the broadcast, it will "take under consideration this incident along with all other evidence tending to show whether or not a particular licensee has conducted his station in the public interest."

The letter, addressed to Lenox R. Lohr, president of the National Broadcasting Company, was signed by Frank R. McNinch, commission chairman.

Thieves Lack 'Grit' So Leave Cement

Apparently finding two 50-pound sacks of cement too heavy to carry, thieves abandoned the loot and left the sacks in an alley near the garage of Mrs. J. S. Akers, of 806 Piedmont avenue, she reported to police last night.

Mrs. Akers told detectives she found the lock on the garage door had been broken, and the cement had been dragged about 10 yards.

THE PIPER'S TUNE

By JOSEPH McCORD.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Caradad Vardell, still a schoolgirl in pigtails when Terry Cantine's father sent him from the cow country to a military school in the south in the hope that the discipline there would accomplish what he himself had been unable to aachieve, sells Farrabow, with its rambling ranch house, less than a year after her father's death. Dad, as the cowhands and finally everybody else called her "for short," decides she needs a change of scene as her mother had died previously, and she starts for Chicago. At Oklahoma City, she takes a chance on wiring Terry at the last address she has, saying she will arrive in the early morning. Terry, tall, handsome, lean and tanned, hardly knows the little, freckled but attractive girl who alights from the last Pullman and smiles at him through rimless spectacles. They drop into the railway station restaurant for breakfast and Terry learns for the first time of John Vardell's death and of Dad's sale of Farrabow through Judge Pomphrette, her father's old friend. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT III.

"Sure. I wish I could recommend my own hotel. But it's a stag affair . . . run like a men's club, you know. I suppose you'd like something quiet and reasonable . . . handy to the shops and shows."

"I think I would rather be right down town."

"Let's see. I've heard of some hotel that caters exclusively to women. Don't know just where it is, but we can find out here at the information desk. And there must be a flock of Y. W.'s. They're always a safe bet for the lone female."

The corners of Caradad's mouth twitched, but she asked gravely enough, "Do I look that way?"

"Of course not!" Terry defended hastily. "I was only suggesting. . .'

"I know," she interposed. "I think I might stop at the Rushmore, just at first. The Pomphrettes always stay there. Do you know anything about it?"

"Very little," Terry admitted with a shrug. "Merely that it's a swanky joint on the lake front. Very nice, I fancy, if you can go the tariff."

"Mayb I can . . . for a few days. The judge told me to let the manager know that I was a personal friend . . . one of the family. So perhaps they will be reasonable about a very little room for me."

"I expect so. If you like, I'll get a taxi after a bit and see that you find it."

"Oh, will you? The train was a very nice one . . . but they all make me feel dirty. They always do. Do you remember taking me with you one day to Wells? How we rode in that stock-train caboose?"

"I sure do," Terry chuckled.

"I remember it, too. I've been thinking of so many things since we've been sitting here . . . about Farrabow and the Two-Bar. I hope we can have a good visit soon and talk about everything."

There was such an unconscious wistfulness in the brown eyes that Terry was moved to declare, "We must. How about your having dinner with me tonight? Then we'll settle down to an old-time palaver . . . go out and look the town over, or anything you like."

"That would be lovely. If you are sure it won't interfere with any other plan you might have. I don't want to impose upon you at all. I'm used to going around by myself, you know."

"Not at all. It would suit me better than anything I can think of. It's a date, Dad."

The girl regarded him thoughtfully as he leaned forward and crushed his cigaret in the ash tray.

Terry Cantine would attract the attention of any woman. Lean but muscular, with an out-of-doors coloring that suggested a man of sufficient means and leisure to spend much of his time away from these crowded and grimy streets. Blue-black hair that swept back from a high forehead in graceful waves calculated to rouse feminine envy. Thin, straight lips above a firm chin. A smile revealing almost perfect teeth. This morning, Terry wore a suit of light gray flannel carefully tailored. A soft-collared shirt of pale blue, a silk scarf of a darker shade.

He glanced up and met Caradad's eyes. "Well?" was his good-natured response.

"Oh. I was just thinking. . . . I mean it has been very thoughtless of me. I've been acting as though you had no work to do. You're probably late now and too polite to tell me to run along."

"Not at all!" Terry protested. "I'm my own boss, really. So you needn't worry that I'll be fired. I do have some people I want to see this morning, but there's no chance at getting to them much before noon."

To his undisguised amazement, he was answered by a low, musical laugh. It was the first time he had heard that laugh, but it was instantly familiar. Even as the sudden twinkle in the brown eyes.

"Terry!"

"Well? What's funny?"

"Just that we've been talking mostly about me and I don't know the least thing about you! You've asked me to dinner and . . . well, I guess I should ask if you're going to bring your wife and children along. Should I?"

"If I had any of those assets, I wouldn't be hanging out in a hotel," he reminded her.

"I forgot."

"I haven't had the time or money to bother with such things. So don't worry about the proprieties. I didn't forget that you told me you had no friends here, so I figured I wouldn't be keeping you away from anybody tonight. Does that settle things?"

"Nicely. Unless I ask you what kind of business you are in here in Chicago. It used to be stocks . . . or something like that, your mother told me."

"Still is. Investment securities, and that sort of thing. The old selling game."

"Is it going pretty well?"

"Fair enough," Terry answered briefly. He tossed his napkin aside and asked, "Shall we fare forth, now? And do you think you still want to try the Rushmore?"

"Yes, please."

Little was said during the trip across the Loop, Caradad being much engrossed with her first view of the city through the windows of the taxi. She roused with a start when the car came to stop and Terry remarked: "H your modest inn, Dad. And Lord High Admiral waiting you."

The girl smiled at the sig the imposing doorman hur forward, gorgeous in his blue gold uniform.

"Maybe he won't let me in," murmured.

At the desk, Cantine w aside the effusive greeting clerk in formal attire with th mark, "The lady is registerin

Caradad wrote her name address with swift, business strokes. One glance at the si ture, and the clerk displayed unexpected affability.

"Oh, yes. . . . Miss Vardell. have a reservation for you. a telegram, if I am not mistak

Terry Cantine's brows lifte polite surprise with the clerk's nouncement that a reservation been made for Miss Vardell. Caradad had intended to sto the Rushmore, after all. And must have wired or written her accommodations. What her idea, then, in asking for tel suggestions while they at breakfast?

As if aware that an expla tion was in order, Caradad l ed up from her opened teleg with a bright smile.

"I thought the judge must h arranged things," she explaine Terry. "He did—he says so. took it for granted I would c here."

"Very nice," was the yo man's only comment. "Will it all right if I drop around at 7 evening?"

"Of course," came the eager surance. "I'll be ready and w ing. And thank you so much . . . everything."

"Note at all. See you later. Caradad shared Terry's surp when, after a trip to the Ru more's sixteenth floor and alon sleekly carpeted hall, she ushered into a small suite at front of the building. Instinc apprehension in regard to its was overshadowed by sud amusement at the accommo tions Judge Pomphrette appea to think suited to a small-to girl on a visit to the big city. was difficult to imagine him, his mouselike little wife, s rounded by smiliar luxury their travels.

Caradad went to one of large windows and gazed sp bound at the panorama bef her. Across the boulevard w its endless traffic, the vast panse of park beyond. The dist reaches of Lake Michigan, shi mering in the June sunshine. was a temptation to remain wat ing the new and exciting wo below. But there would be ti enough for that later.

The bedroom met with complete approval. And the ba with its pale green tiles and ch mium fixtures, was more invit yet after her train trip. S sighed blissfully and removed h shoes.

After a leisurely bath, ending a resolve to scour the stores un she discovered some huge s towels like the one enveloping h slender body at the moment, t guest donned a red kimono and shabby little pair of slippers.

Noticing Judge Pomphrett telegram lying on the dresser b side her bag, she picked it up a not bothering to put on her glas es, deciphered it by holding it a most at arm's length. The wi said.

"Hope you were a good girl a followed orders. Took the liber of making arrangements at hot Don't renege on me. Mamma joi me in regards and wishes for good time. Will write soon."

"The old dear," Caradad mu mured. She tossed the messa aside with a little sigh,

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

A Little Saturday Talk.

We have already spoken of Egyptian hunters, and of how they enjoyed their sport. Fishing was also a favorite pastime, and many a rich man went out in a boat to spear fish. Poor men caught fish, too, but their fishing was work rather than play. Pike, eels and perch were among the fish caught for market, and these were taken chiefly with nets.

Bull-fighting was fairly popular, at least during one period. The bulls were taught to rush against one another. If they did not fight hard enough, they were poked with sticks.

That many wrestling matches took place, we may judge by the number of pictures of contests which have been saved. The wrestler wore no clothing except a girdle, and seems to have run at his rival for catch-as-catch-can. After the two fell to the ground or floor, they kept up the struggle until one or the other was "down."

On an entire wall of a partly-ruined building in Egypt, we find paintings of different scenes in a wrestling match. One of the wrestlers is colored black, the other red. The artist may have used these colors so the men could be told apart; but it is also possible that one was meant for a negro, the other for an Egyptian. The Egyptians were members of the white race, but Egypt's glaring sun gave their skins a reddish-brown tinge.

So far as we know, there were few, if any, boxing matches in Egypt. There were, however, matches between men with sticks. The sticks were thin—they might sting, but they were not likely to do great damage. To protect himself, each man had a wooden guard bound to his left arm.

A game of checkers was known, and often played, in Egypt. Some of the "men" used on the boards have been found. They were usually made of clay or ivory. To keep the checkers from becoming mixed, they were either shaped or colored differently. One side might have round heads, the other flat; or one side might be black, the other red.

UTILITY ISSUES UP ON CURB EXCHANGE

Group Rises, But Brief Spell of Profit-Taking Cuts Gains.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Utilities provided the main prop in the curb market today.

In modest demands most of the forenoon, the group increased in popularity following President Roosevelt's friendly gesture to operating utility companies. A brief spell of profit taking right at the close cut some of the gains.

Finishing higher by fractions were Northern States Power "A" at 13 1-2, Niagara Hudson Power 8 3-8, United Gas 5, American Gas & Electric 25 3-4 and Electric Bond & Share 9 5-8. Other shares improving included Gulf Oil, McWilliams Dredging, Sherwin-Williams and Teck-Hughes.

Sales totaled 186,000 shares compared with 227,000 yesterday.

TARZAN UNDER FIRE — No. 78 — By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Instead of leaping at him as he expected, the great lion rubbed against Dick's side and licked his hand with hot, rough tongue. Like a title flashed upon a screen, a sentence burned bright in Doc's memory, a sentence that had come from Tarzan's lips.

"To show that he is your friend he will rub his head against you." Yes, this was Jad-bal-ja, Tarzan's trained lion! Doc's knees gave way; he sank to the ground, flinging his arms about the beast's neck, burying his face in the great golden mane, sobbing.

This reaction to his nervous strain lasted only a moment; then he gained control of himself and sprang to his feet. Not far away, Dick and Yvonne were in danger—every second counted. "Quick, Jad-bal-ja!" Doc cried, then started up the ravine at a run. . . .

. . . Meanwhile, Gulm was approaching the end of his monotonous prayer. Yvonne was looking up at him, her terror-stricken gaze held in fascination upon the hideous face of the high priest. Suddenly Gulm ceased speaking. He raised his hand; then he cried: "STRIKE!"

M'NUTT SPEEDING ON NEAR EAST TOUR IN CHECK ON TOKYO

Requested by President To Report on Activities of Japan in Philippines.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(UP) At the request of President Roosevelt, Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner to the Philippine Islands, is making a whirlwind tour of the Far East to ascertain the exact extent of Japan's economic penetration of the islands and the empire's objectives concerning the International Settlement at Shanghai, it was learned tonight.

McNutt will report in person to the chief executive early in F - ruary. He plans tentatively to return to Manila on an American warship and later fly to Washington for the Presidential conference.

Unusually Significant.

The visit of the high commissioner is regarded as unusually significant, particularly in view of the administration's announced objective of strengthening national defenses.

It created the possibility of the program being delayed until Department of State, navy and war officials have conferred with him. Present plans call for increased expenditures for national defense under the 1939 budget ranging from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. President Roosevelt will send a special message to congress on the subject.

McNutt is now on the island of Mindanao, center of the $185,000,000 Philippine abaca (hemp) industry. He is investigating reports that Japanese have taken virtual control of the industry and have concentrated 15,000 nationals near the important hemp port of Davao.

Confer with Yarnell.

Upon his return to Manila McNutt is expected to take passage on a warship for Shanghai, where he will confer with Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic fleet. They will discuss the Far Eastern situation, which is regarded as a potential powder-keg since Japanese aviators bombed and sank the United States gunboat Panay.

To the Victors Belong the 'Spoils' in Scavenger Hunt

Pasha Holds Attack On Life Worth Nickel

CAIRO, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Former Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha today claimed damages of five cents—one piastre—from a youth who attempted to assassinate him last November.

Nahas, intervening as a "civil party," claimed the damages from Abd El Kader, the confessed assailant, who is awaiting criminal trial for the attack.

Hospital Reveals Young Atlantans' Strange Thirst

A variety unusual mishaps sent more than 30 children to Grady hospital for treatment recently, reports in the emergency ward revealed last night.

Helen Cohra, 14, of 369 Oak street, came to the hospital when she swallowed an insect. She was treated and sent home. An hour later she returned. She had swallowed a small key.

Betty Joe Lindsey, of 124 Astor street, swallowed an open safety pin; Shirley Anne Wyatt, 1, of 1475 McPherson street, swallowed a quantity of disinfectant; Jim Thrasher, 2, of 129 Estonia street, swallowed kerosene, and little James Regan, 3, of 335 Venable street, began "banking" at an early age. He swallowed a penny.

Other "casualties" were James Hunter, 6, of 475 Oliver street, bitten by a rat, and Robert Dennard, 11, and his brother, Ralph, 13, of 1950 Ormond street, bitten by a pet dog.

Ben Williford Disbarment Hearing Set January 31

Long - pending disbarment proceedings against Ben C. Williford, Atlanta attorney, were set yesterday by Superior Judge John D. Humphries for hearing January 31.

The proceedings are based on alleged misconduct in Tift county. The defendant, who has been suspended, is under a two-year perjury sentence, now being appealed to the state supreme court alleged to have grown out of the conduct of the disbarment suit.

K K K K K K K K K K K K K K And 36 More of Them Win Hunt

And What a Job It Was To Underscore Them in Christmas Issue of The Constitution, Which Was Prize in Church Contest.

An issue of The Constitution for Christmas Day served an unusual purpose last night. It helped a group of Bolton young people to win a "scavenger hunt."

But the troubles of the "hunters" did not end with merely obtaining the paper. They had to underline with pencil the letter "k" 50 times.

The hunters, Ellis Donald, Jeff Warren, Marie Cochran, and the Bowles sisters, Ernestine and Etheline, twins, and Fay, were far from through when they "scavenged" The Constitution issue.

There was a rock from Crest Lawn cemetery, obtained in line with the instructions, "up the way on a cemetery hill, find a rock if you will."

There was a description of a mouse, snared from an obliging Tech student, C. M. Neal Jr., who wrote:

"A mouse is a small animal variously referred to as a rodent, rat, etc. The common garden and house variety are usually grey. Those of a higher order of intelligence are called white mice. For further information see your favorite cat."

There was an electric light from a "house painted white," an ice cream cone, the autograph of A. A. Duke, 48, of 2214 Peachtree road, parking lot attendant, and a drinking straw from a negro employe of an eating place on North avenue. The negro is known as "Hot Papa," the young folks said.

The hunters also "found a pin and bought a pear," as part of the hunt of the Epworth League of Collins Memorial Methodist church, Bolton. Nine carloads of young people engaged in the hunt.

3 Trembling Bank-Bandit Killers Hanged for Slayings 8 Years Ago

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Three young thugs who shot down four persons, killing two of them, in a $3,100 bank holdup on New Year's Eve, 1930, were hanged here today.

The hoodlums, Joseph Ugarte, 27; Owen Cauche, 27, and Anthony Dallao, 26, pasty-faced in fear, went to the gallows in that order.

Sleepy, nervous and distracted, they sought solace during their last hours in prayer. In their death marches and on the trap they neither formally denied nor expressed sorrow for wrongdoing.

New Orleans was in gay and festive mood on that New Year's Eve when the bandits went to the Piety street branch of the Whitney National Bank, and shouted:

"Let's go in shooting."

And they did. Their blazing guns mowed down Pierre Rizan, 61, bank watchman, before he knew what was happening. Gilbert Dietrich, 26, college student, a customer in the bank, grabbed one of the bandits, but a confederate sent a bullet through his brain. Albert Brownson, teller, received a slug in the body. Charles Dietrich, father of Gilbert, making a deposit, was shot in one finger. Rizan and Gilbert Dietrich died.

The condemned men slept little during the night. Their sorrowing relatives bade them good-bye at midnight. It was the second such experience for one of the mothers, Mrs. Gus Dallao. Three years ago George Dallao, brother of Anthony, was hanged across the river from here for murdering a grocer during a holdup.

They were given spiritual comfort by Father Andrew J. Mulreany, prison chaplain, during the morning.

Ugarte was the first to go to his death. He shook hands with Cauche and Dallao and said:

"Good-bye; I'll meet you in heaven!"

He trembled as he went to the scaffold.

Walks Unsteadily to Doom.

Cauche, walking unsteadily, was the next to go. As he bade Dallao farewell, Dallao said:

"It's awful to die for something you didn't do!"

Dallao was the calmest of the trio but just before the trap was sprung, his knees became wobbly and started buckling. Attendants held him up a few seconds before he plunged to his death.

ELBERTON, Jan. 14.—Prediction that the present business recession will be short-lived was voiced here tonight by Senator Walter F. George, addressing the annual banquet of the Elberton Chamber of Commerce.

The senior Georgia senator reviewed the cause and effects of the old depression and the efforts of the Roosevelt administration to defeat it.

Though there are many, he said, who do not agree with the policies and procedure of President Roosevelt, the chief executive is sincerely and honestly doing his best to bring about economic improvement for the people of the nation.

Approximately 400 persons heard the senator's address, which was cut short to permit him to catch a train for his return to Washington.

He added he did "not suppose it will be very long before I make a decision."
